The Doctor's Endorsement

Dr. W. D. Wright, [illegible] O., sends the subjoined professional endorsement: "I have prescribed DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS in a great number of cases and always with success. One case in particular was given up by several physicians who had been called in for consultation with myself. The patient had all the symptoms of confirmed consumption—cold night sweats, hectic fever, harassing coughs, etc. He commenced immediately to get better and was soon restored to his usual health. I found DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS the most valuable expectorant for breaking up distressing coughs and colds."

GENERAL NEWS.

No Material Change in the Condition of Grant.

ONE DEMOCRAT OUT OF LUCK.

An Old Letter against the Union Costs him his Office. Cable Specials from London—The British Still Growling at Gladstone

NEW YORK, May 10.—Grant slept fully seven hours Saturday night, and when the four doctors [illegible] consultation this afternoon, they found the general's condition was, if anything, improved, but the cancerous spots were unchanged. Dr. Barker sails for Europe. This will be [illegible] his last consultation before going. When he [illegible] the general good-bye [illegible] "When I come back in the autumn I shall expect to find your literary work finished to your satisfaction."

"You don't expect to find me, though, do you?" said the general.

"I shall hope to anyhow," responded Dr. Barker, as he went away.

Dr. Shrady said the two new cancer spots had not perceptibly increased since Wednesday. The general at a window waved an adieu to Dr. Douglas as he drove away with his family.

Roscoe Conkling and Cyrus W. Field called during the afternoon. At 5 o'clock this afternoon, while thousands were strolling on the avenues, General Grant, attended only by Harrison, left his house and walked toward Madison avenue. His face was more brisk than during any previous walk. "No, I feel no more fatigued [illegible]" [illegible] as he reached the steps of his house. He mounted the steps with as little weariness as [illegible] previous occasions of his exercise.

WASHINGTON GETS THE CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The council of Catholic prelates which met in Baltimore last week for the purpose of selecting a place for a new Catholic university decided that it shall be built in this city. Although Catholics of other cities offered very large monetary inducements toward securing the university, the fact that Washington possesses the national museum, congressional library and other advantages, and is fast becoming a literary and scientific center, caused the prelates to decide in favor of locating the university at the capital. Rev. Dr. Chapple of St. Matthew's church, who was selected as one of the trustees and was among the foremost to urge the claims of Washington to the university, to-day made a strong appeal to his congregation to contribute at least $50,000 to endow a chair in the proposed university.

ANOTHER INTERVIEW.

ST. PAUL, May 10.—In an interview with an associated press reporter to-night, John McClane of Bismarck, just returned from Winnipeg, where he had been dealing in horses, wagons and supplies to the Canadian government, said: The government has advices that men from Chicago, New York and Boston are with Riel, and that a master mind, not Riel's, is directing the movements of the half breeds. Old timers regard Middleton's success at Batouche as absolutely necessary to prevent the Indians rising, which would be disastrous. All supplies are short and about all must come from this side of the line. North Dakota is now being drained of horses, hay, oats, etc. It is believed that about 1500 half breeds are in the field, and that 6000 Indians are ready to take the warpath, with but 4000 troops to oppose them.

ALABAMA MEN IN LUCK.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The Post announces that ex-Governor Shelley of Alabama will be appointed fourth auditor of the treasury, and that Dr. [illegible] of Alabama will be appointed consul at Curacoa, Venezuela.

CLEARING HOUSE RETURNS.

BOSTON, May 10.—Leading clearing houses of the United States report total clearances for the week ending May 9, $[illegible], a decrease of [illegible] per cent as compared with the corresponding week last year.

LILLIAN RUSSELL MARRIED.

HOBOKEN, N. J., May 10.—Composer Solomon and Lillian Russell, the actress, were married to-day in the Lutheran church.

AN OLD REBEL YELL.

It Cost to Blackburn's Brother a Nice, Fat Office.

NEW YORK, May 10.—[Special.]—Star's Washington special: Another newly appointed office holder has lost his head. The victim this time is a brother of Senator Joe Blackburn. The president, after consulting with members of his cabinet, has revoked Blackburn's appointment as internal revenue collector for the Lexington, Ky., district, because of the following letter written by Blackburn, which has just been made public:

ARLINGTON, Va., Oct. 2, 1861.

My Dear Wife: I have left you and our children in the land of the despot, but God grant that I may soon be able to make the Union men of Kentucky feel the edge of my knife. From this day I hold every Union traitor as my enemy, and from him I scorn to receive quarter, and to him I will never grant, my soul in death, for they are cowards and villains enough. Brother Henry and I arrived here without hindrance. I have had chills all the way, but I hope to live to kill forty Yankees for every chill that I ever had. I learn that Hardee is still in Arkansas. Lee is reported inactive, and if this prove true I will tender my resignation, to go immediately to Kentucky. I hope that I will do my duty as a rebel and freeman. Since I know the Union men of Kentucky I intend to begin the work of murder in earnest, and if ever I spare one of them may hell be my portion. I want to see Union blood run deep enough for my horse to swim in. Your husband,

JAMES BLACKBURN.

It is understood that all of the president's advisers approved of the revocation of the appointment.

CABLE SPECIALS.

The British Public Still Growling at Gladstone's Timidity—Russia Very Aggressive.

NEW YORK, May 10.—[Special.]—A cable special from London says: The feeling on the Russian compromise is a curiously mixed one—relief at the escape from war and anger at the clumsiness of the escape. Even the strongest jingoes admit that the Penjdeh accident was a trumpery and [illegible] pretext for war, but the public generally cannot forgive Gladstone for yielding, after his passionate orations and enormous preparations. The real secret of the backdown was gross miscalculations concerning the intentions of the ameer. That the ameer sold England there is little doubt, and it is now gravely discussed whether he [illegible] is not a Russian agent, and whether it is not useless to deal with him. The latest developments to-night regarding the Anglo-Russian complication indicate the abandonment of even the so-called arbitration, which has been vaunted as an honorable mode of covering England's retreat.

THE TRIBUNE'S CABLE SPECIAL.

NEW YORK, May 10.—[Special.]—A cable special to the Tribune says: [illegible] that Sir Stafford Northcote immediately asked what was the precise point to be referred to the arbitrator. There was no answer from Gladstone, but the answer has now arrived from St. Petersburg. Russia evidently thinks it is for her interest to make known the terms of settlement which Gladstone thought it for his interest to conceal as long as possible. The czar calmly announces that General Komaroff acted in entire accordance with his instructions, and that he was not forbidden to advance, but only forbidden to occupy Penjdeh. Russia therefore takes upon herself the entire responsibility of General Komaroff's action, but since the British cabinet thinks that the Russian [illegible] ought according to agreement to have ordered General Komaroff to abstain from all attack, Russia is willing to submit the interpretation of the agreement to arbitration.

In the meantime negotiations respecting the frontier have been resumed, and the Russians remain in possession of the territory occupied pending the delimitation of the boundary.

The feeling in England, at first one of perplexity, is daily hardening into hostility and anxiety at the [illegible] of the peace obtained in this singular manner. Lord Randolph Churchill at once struck the keynote of his own party by denouncing the action of the ministry as a base and cowardly surrender. Others employ less violent epithets, but dislike the policy adopted; the radicals and [illegible] excepted.

RUSSIA'S POLICY.

I [illegible] While preferring to negotiate [illegible] herself on March [illegible] and declaring that she had ordered her generals to avoid a conflict [illegible] General Komaroff and slaughtered the Afghans. Required to apologize she refused. Asked to arbitrate on the Penjdeh incident, she has consented to refer not the Penjdeh incident, but the interpretation of the agreement. Such reference can have no practical result. It cannot deprive her of one foot of territory nor disturb the immense prestige she has won in Asia and in Europe. She refuses to pledge herself not to advance to Herat or beyond the frontier now to be drawn almost exactly on the [illegible] line. No wonder there is dismay in India and disgust in England. The recall of Sir Peter Lumsden, though probably not demanded by Russia, is sure to be considered in Asia as one more visible token of the Russian triumph. It is not the less a triumph because won by flagrant perfidy, nor is immediate peace quite certain nor permanent peace probable. What England gains [illegible]. What Russia gains, besides everything else, is time to complete railways to the frontier.

CANADA.

THE ICE BLOCKADE CONTINUES.

QUEBEC, May 10.—There are about two dozen steamers now due here, one, two, and even three steamers of some of the lines being behind time. Such an occurrence has hitherto been unknown in the history of this port. From all accounts the ice in the gulf is unusually heavy and blocks the usual route to this port. It is generally anticipated that in addition to the steamer Helvetia a number of others [illegible] through [illegible].

IDAHO.

OPPOSED TO CHIEF JOSEPH'S RETURN.

LEWISTON, May 10.—[Special.]—At a mass meeting of citizens of northern Idaho at Lewiston on Friday there was an animated discussion of the return of Chief Joseph and hostile Nez Perces from Indian territory to the Lapwai reservation. The sentiment of the Idaho county delegation was unanimously against the proposal to return. A prolonged discussion resulted in the appointment of a committee to draft resolutions. A preamble and resolutions were presented last night and an adjourned meeting unanimously endorsed the [illegible] as follows:

Resolved, That the sentiment of this community is unanimously opposed to the return to Idaho or any part of the northwest of hostile Nez Perces now in Indian territory, unless accompanied by a permanent military force of sufficient strength to maintain peace and protect the frontier settlements bordering on the Nez Perce reservation.

Copies of the resolutions were forwarded to the secretary of the interior and the Indian commissioner, and citizens request their publication through the associated press.

CALIFORNIA.

FATAL SHOOTING AFFRAY.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10.—A shooting affray occurred on Kearney street this afternoon in which a young woman, Sarah Judd, was instantly killed and William Somerset was dangerously wounded. The shooting was done by George Daniel, who lived with the woman in Los Angeles. She ran off with Somerset and Daniel traced them to this city, and while walking with the woman on Kearney street encountered Somerset. Both men drew revolvers, and Daniel retreated, firing as he did so. At the second shot the woman fell dead. A third bullet struck Somerset, inflicting a dangerous wound. Daniel, who was unhurt, was immediately arrested.

VICTORIA, May 10.—Arrived: Ship Cambrian Prince, Newport, Wales, 2000 tons steel rails to Canadian Pacific railroad company; steamer [illegible], Hong Kong, merchandise and passengers.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

THE GRAND JURY REFUSES TO INDICT GRIMES.

WALLA WALLA, May 10.—[Special.]—In the case of Grimes, for killing Irwin a week ago, the grand jury brought in "not a true bill."

POLITICAL EXPRESSION.

By all the rules of medical science General Grant should be in his grave. But then the general has always been an obstinate man.—Minneapolis Tribune.

"Daniel Manning isn't afraid of his politics or his political management," says a democratic exchange. That's exactly the trouble with Daniel—he's shameless.—Minneapolis Tribune.

The shameless attack of Senator Eustis of Louisiana on the administration of his party is simply another vulgar row of office brokers among the spoils.—Boston Transcript.

Referring to the mugwumps the Macon Telegraph says: The trouble with the deserters is that it is always more costly to feed them after they have left their flag than to fight them when serving under it.

One of the questions the postmaster general asks of expectant postmasters is: "Have you ever been indicted for crime?" That will keep all the rascals out, for lots of the smartest ones have usually escaped.—Inter Ocean.

The signs of a coming break between the president and the practical politicians of his party are increasing every day. He is going so slow in the matter of appointments that they are getting very dissatisfied.—Boston Advertiser.

It pains us to be compelled to remind the New York Tribune that Higgins is engaged in reforming a great number of rascally republicans out of office. Higgins is one of the truest reformers this country has produced.—Atlanta Constitution.

Philadelphia is to be asked to raise the balance needed to complete the Bartholdi pedestal. A tax of $1 on each of the democrats who expected an office from Cleveland and have not received it would very probably raise the money.—Philadelphia Call.

"A low priced politician" is what the New York Times called Cleveland when he was governor. If the mugwump goods are not delivered more rapidly the Times will be forced to believe that his terms increase in proportion to the value of his merchandise.—New York Tribune.

No conversion since the days of St. Paul has been more remarkable than that of George William Curtis. Only last summer he described the democratic party as "very hungry and very thirsty," but last week he alluded to Mr. Pendleton as leader of "a party that holds the spoils system is a crime."—Boston Traveler.

The more sturdy democratic organs which feel impelled to support the democratic administration through thick and thin, have raised the inquiry, "Isn't one democrat as good as another?" It is intended as an unanswerable reply to all democratic criticism of the president. But the present public inquiry is "Isn't one democrat as bad as another?"—N. Y. Tribune.

Each appointment must be submitted to a committee of mugwump newspapers before it is publicly announced, the committee to have the right to send for persons and papers and to reject the nominee if in the past he has been an avowed and energetic democrat. This would deprive the president of much of his rightful power and convert the cabinet into a respectable figure head, but in return we would have the satisfaction of knowing that we were rid of the hovering phantom of the mugwump issue.—Utica Observer (dem.)

PRESS PITH.

Race instinct is the latest name for negro [illegible] in the south.

Recent events show that nations will give and take a good deal nowadays before they will declare war.—Minneapolis Tribune.

A paper down in Texas has discovered that "the reason why men succeed who mind their own business is because there is so little competition."—Inter Ocean.

Judge Zane is the first federal judge in Utah who seems to have found a good, solid fulcrum for his lever. He moves the Mormon mass.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

As the amusement season closes and skating rinks begin to collapse the ministers grow more and more zealous in their crusade against popular vices in the amusement line.—Minneapolis Times.

The secretary of war has ordered that all persons in his department shall pay their debts. This has led a great many democrats to say that the administration doesn't seem to be in a great hurry to pay its political debts.—N. Y. Tribune.

Some of the Boston papers are calling attention to the prevalence of polluting speech in the streets of that city. "The frequency," says the Transcript, "with which one hears vile language used in the streets makes the demand particularly timely." If the police do not hear the nasty talk openly indulged in by street corner loafers they enjoy an immunity which excites the envy of all good citizens.

FOSSILIFEROUS.

Astorian.

A subscriber living at Cove, Oregon, writes a [illegible] communication to the Enterprise concerning that part of the state. As the Enterprise is devoted to the interests of Clackamas county we do not care to [illegible] any other.—Oregon City Enterprise.

There spoke the true fossil. He won't admit praise of any other section of the state in his paper. Probably he is afraid some other section of the state might prosper at the expense of his little tax burg. What a ridiculous spirit in one who pretends to be a newspaper man. Any Oregonian, be he in Umatilla or Josephine or Clatsop, should be glad if he has the opportunity to say a good word for any part of our great commonwealth, and by so doing he would well serve the interests of the community where he lives. We of Oregon should be big brained and big hearted enough to realize that every county in the state has a common destiny, that what helps or hurts one helps or hurts all, and the man who can't see this is not the man to help "the interests of Clackamas" or any other county. The Oregon City man should rechristen his journal or else try to make it what its name implies.

Quaker Testimony.

Mrs. A. M. Dauphin, a Quaker lady of Philadelphia, has done a great deal to make known to ladies there the great value of Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a cure for their troubles and diseases. She writes as follows: "A young lady of this city while bathing some years ago was thrown violently against the life line, and the injuries received resulted in an ovarian tumor which grew and enlarged until death seemed certain. Her physician finally advised her to try Mrs. Pinkham's Compound. She did so and in a short time the tumor was dissolved or caused to slough off, and she is now in perfect health. I also know of many cases where the medicine has been of great value in preventing miscarriage and alleviating the pains and dangers of childbirth. Philadelphia ladies appreciate the worth of this medicine and its great value."

A FIGHT WITH RIEL.

General Middleton Attacks the Rebels at Batouche.

HIS SCOUTS FORCED TO RETIRE

Several of his Men Killed and Wounded—A Gatling Gun Mows Down the Rebels—Night Stops the Fighting

WINNIPEG, Man., May 10.—Reports from the front are to the effect that a battle between Middleton's forces and Riel at Batouche has been raging since yesterday morning. It began by cannonading the logs and earthworks of Riel by Middleton's artillery corps. The result so far is understood to be a drawn battle. An attempt will probably be made when the works are reduced to storm the position simultaneously from the front and flank, when frightful fatalities are likely to result, as the enemy are well armed and deadly in aim.

PARTICULARS OF THE BATTLE.

WINNIPEG, May 10.—The following dispatch has just been received:

BATOUCHE CROSSING, via Clarke's Crossing, May 9.

We left camp at 6 this morning, leaving all supplies and tents behind. We marched seven miles without seeing or hearing anything of the enemy. The morning was bright and warm. Suddenly there came the sound of a steamer's whistle blowing continuously. As we drew near we heard the sound of heavy firing in the direction of the river. Our line of march was as follows: First, Boulton's scouts, accompanied by a Gatling gun, the grenadiers formed the advance guard with a battery; the Ninetieth battalion supported them with the Winnipeg battery, and the Midland battalion was in reserve, with the gun from the steamer.

The scouts and Gatling then pushed rapidly ahead and soon came upon two houses near the bank of the river, which here is very precipitous. The advanced party of the rebels were met, who fired and retired behind a house, towards a hollow. The Gatling was brought to bear on them, when they ran into a house near the church of St. Laurent, which was also fired on by the Gatling, when they ran out into the bush. The battery by this time came up with a rush and got into position, sending several shells after the rebels. The Grenadiers now advanced, marching steadily into action, and deployed into line, continuing to advance in skirmishing order till the church was reached, when a priest came out of the house waving a white flag. General Middleton and staff advanced and shook hands, when three other priests and five Sisters of Charity came out. A number of half-breed children were also inside in charge of the Sisters.

A PERILOUS RUN.

Father Moulin informed me that the steamer arrived at a point a little above Batouche at 5.30 A. M., and the rebels immediately commenced firing on it from both banks. It shortly afterward struck on a mud bank, but swung clear again, and just before our arrival passed the crossing. He also said the rebels had six killed and twelve wounded at Fish creek. We just got a glimpse of the steamer down the river. She must have had a hard fire, as her smoke stack was gone.

The Grenadiers advanced skirmishing through the bush at the right of the trail, the Gatling being pushed forward down a declivity towards Batouche, now plainly visible in the valley below. Here the battery unlimbered on top of the ridge, sending shells into them, and whilst doing so were almost surprised by a number of rebels, who crept up through the bush, not being discovered until twenty yards distant. They made a rush for the guns, firing and yelling as they ran. Captain Howard, who operates the Gatling gun, saw the danger, and running the gun a couple of yards in front of the battery and opening fire, literally mowed the rebels down. Those remaining turned and ran from it, reaching the shelter of the bush. They opened fire again, and Howard's escape from injury was something marvelous, bullets flying all round him. He gallantly maintained his position, and the rebels, unable to stand the terrible fire, returned to pits constructed in a ravine running from the river.

Our line was now as follows: Forty-first and Fifteenth companies Midland, with Winnipeg battery, supported by F and C companies of the Ninetieth in the center, and extending across to the right, where the grenadiers were supported on the left by B company of the Ninetieth, on the right center by D company of the Ninetieth, and on the extreme right by F and E companies. The A battery occupied the left center, afterwards returning to the right rear.

FRENCH'S SCOUTS REPULSED.

11 A. M.—As I now write Capt. French, with his scouts and part of the dismounted men of A battery, are down in the ravine. Firing is now continuous on the left and center, but is scattered on the right.

After gallant but vain efforts to drive the rebels from their rifle pits, French's scouts and battery men retired. The wounded are now coming. At noon the list of killed and wounded on our side is as follows: A battery—Gunner Phillips, shot through the stomach while in the ravine, and died while being brought in; Thos. J. Stout, run over by carriage, but not fatal; C. H. Appleton, shot through both legs, one fractured; Gunners Fairbanks and Toohy, also shot in legs. Grenadiers—Capt. Mason, No. 2 company, slight wound in thigh. French's scouts—R. Cook, slightly wounded in leg; Curley Allen, in shoulder.

At 2 P. M. the rebels' fire gradually ceased, our troops, however, still keeping up a scattered fire along the line, gradually slackening until 4 o'clock, when only a few shots were heard. No more of our troops were hurt.

William Bruce, lately a prisoner of Riel's, but who escaped on Tuesday, was brought in by the scouts. He says that Riel's force is a little over 400, half of whom were on the other side of the river when he left. He also says that when ammunition was served to the rebels only one keg of powder remained. Bullets are also scarce. The women and children had been sent to the other side of the river. Prisoners are safe so far as he knew. Beardy is not with Riel, but has been sent for. Riel, Dumont, Garneau and other leaders are in Riel's camp.

THE REBELS SHELLED.

6 P. M.—Boulton's horse has gone back to our corral to bring up all the wagons and supplies. We camp to-night, General Middleton being determined to get in position. Captain Young has just climbed on the roof of the church, and descried a body of Indians on a level with the river, near the bank, about a mile away. The Winnipeg battery was ordered and sent several well directed shells, scattering them immediately. Firing has now entirely ceased, but may be resumed at any moment. No news has been received from the steamer, but she keeps blowing her whistle. Hence it is concluded she is safe. The sound apparently comes from two or three miles down the river.

Early in the morning crowds of women, children and mounted men were seen hurrying into the bush on the other side of the river. The weather has been warm and bright all day.

6:30 P. M.—A body of rebels has just opened fire from a bluff near the ravine on our left front, evidently on our skirmishers. They have fired three volleys, but are shooting too high to reach us. The Winnipeg battery are shelling houses in the distance where a large number of rebels are gathered. A second shell crashes through the first house and the rebels rush out. Another shell blows the roof off the house beyond. As these dispatches leave scattered firing is going on. We expect to clean out the rebels to-morrow and communicate with the boat later.

THE NEWS AT MONTREAL AND OTTAWA.

MONTREAL, May 10.—Much excitement exists here over the news of the engagement at Batouche, and reports displayed on bulletin boards at the hotels are eagerly canvassed.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 10.—Feeling here over the news from the northwest to-day is intense. The papers have issued extras giving accounts of the battle. The newspaper offices were crowded all day and the fight was the sole topic of conversation everywhere. It is understood that the government have received a report confirming the news received by the press.

AN INDIAN FIGHTER INTERVIEWED.

ST. PAUL, May 10.—General Crook, one of the heroes of the Minnesota Indian wars, and judge of the military commission that condemned 300 Sioux to death, thirty-eight of whom were hanged at Mankato shortly after the massacre there, was interviewed by an Associated Press reporter this evening as to the outlook for a general Indian uprising in the Northwest territory, because of his familiarity with the Indian character. He says Middleton must achieve a decisive victory or all the Indians will have on war paint in a week. Should the half breeds achieve a signal victory over Middleton the result could not be but most disastrous. He said the best plan of attack from this distance of observation would be to weaken the works by shot, scatter the half breeds by shell from the front and flank, have Irwin fall in upon the rear with his 500 mounted police, force the enemy into disorder, mass them if possible and then attack them with Gatlings, rifles, shot and shell until disordered, and then storm their works. This would doubtless cost many good lives, as the enemy are nervy and fine shots, being trained hunters, but the end to be attained is so desirable and necessary that troops must be sacrificed. Otherwise the whole country would be swept by savages, who are liable to go on the war path on the principle of throwing their lives away, in which case they would spare no women or children. He added that whatever grievances the half breeds may have, if they act like merciless savages they are entitled to no sympathy from Christian civilization.

CABLE SPECIALS.

The British Public Still Growling at Gladstone's Timidity—Russia Very Aggressive

NEW YORK, May 10.—[Special.]—A cable special from London says: The feeling on the Russian compromise is a curiously mixed one, of relief at the escape from war and anger at the clumsiness of the escape. Even the strongest Jingoes admit that the Penjdeh accident was a trumpery, and an absurd pretext for war, but the public generally cannot forgive Gladstone for yielding after his passionate orations and enormous preparations. The real secret of the backdown was gross miscalculations concerning the intentions of the ameer. That the ameer split England there is little doubt, and it is now gravely discussed whether the ameer is not a Russian agent, and whether it is not useless to deal with him. The latest developments to-night regarding the Anglo-Russian [illegible] of the arbitration, which has been [illegible] honorable [illegible] of covering England [illegible]

THE [illegible]

NEW YORK, May 10.—[Special.]—A [illegible] that Sir Stafford Northcote immediately asked what was the precise point to be referred to the arbitrator. There was no answer from Gladstone, but the answer has now arrived from St. Petersburg. Russia evidently thinks it is for her interest to make known the terms of settlement which Gladstone thought it for his interest to conceal as long as possible. The czar calmly announces that General Komaroff acted in entire accordance with his instructions and that he was not forbidden to advance, but only forbidden to occupy Penjdeh. Russia therefore takes upon herself the entire responsibility of General Komaroff's action, but since the British cabinet thinks that the Russians did not ought, according to agreement, [illegible] Russia is willing to submit the interpretation of the agreement to arbitration.

[illegible] negotiations respecting the frontier have been resumed, and the Russians [illegible] possession of the territory occupied [illegible] delimitation of the boundary.

RUSSIAN POLICY

[illegible] Russia [illegible] occupies [illegible] Merv [illegible] she had ordered [illegible] to avoid a conflict, she let loose General Komaroff and slaughtered the Afghans. Such reference can [illegible] cannot deprive her of one foot of territory nor disturb the immense prestige she has won in Asia and also in Europe. She [illegible] to pledge herself not to advance to Herat [illegible] the frontier now to be drawn almost exactly on the Tessar line. No wonder there is dismay in India and disgust in England. The recall of Sir Peter Lumsden, though probably not decided by Russia, is sure to be considered in Asia as one more visible token of the Russian triumph. It is not the less a triumph because won by flagrant perfidy, nor is immediate peace quite certain nor permanent peace probable. What England gains is a respite. What Russia gains, besides everything else, is time to complete railways to the frontier.

LEWISTON, May 10.—[Special.]—At a mass meeting of citizens of northern Idaho at Lewiston on Friday there was an animated discussion of the return of Chief Joseph and hostile Nez Perces from Indian territory to the Lapwai reservation. The sentiment of the Idaho county delegation was unanimously against the proposal to return. A prolonged discussion resulted in the appointment of a committee to draft resolutions. A preamble and resolutions were presented last night, and [illegible] endorsed the final resolution as follows:

It is intended as an unanswerable reply to all democratic criticism of the president. But the present public inquiry is, "Isn't one democrat as bad as another?"—N. Y. Tribune.

Each appointment must be submitted to a committee of mugwump newspapers before it is publicly announced, the committee to have the right to send for persons and papers and to reject the nominee if in the past he has been an avowed and energetic democrat. Quaker Testimony

Mrs. A. M. Dauphin, a Quaker lady of Philadelphia, has done a great deal to make known to ladies there the great value of Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a cure for their troubles and diseases. She writes as follows: "A young lady of this city while bathing some years ago was thrown violently against the life line, and the injuries received resulted in an ovarian tumor which grew and enlarged until death seemed certain. Her physician finally advised her to try Mrs. Pinkham's Compound. She did so and in a short time the tumor was dissolved or caused to slough off, and she is now in perfect health. I also know of many cases where the medicine has been of great value in preventing miscarriage and alleviating the pains and dangers of childbirth. Philadelphia ladies appreciate the worth of this medicine and its great value."

A FIGHT WITH RIEL.

General Middleton Attacks the Rebels at Batouche.

HIS SCOUTS FORCED TO RETIRE.

Several of his Men Killed and Wounded. A Gatling Gun Mows Down the Rebels. Night Stops the Fighting.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 10.—Reports from the front are to the effect that a battle between Middleton's forces and Riel at Batouche has been raging since yesterday morning. It began by cannonading the logs and earthworks of Riel by Middleton's artillery corps. The result so far is understood to be a drawn battle. An attempt will probably be made when the works are reduced to storm the position simultaneously from the front and flank, when frightful fatalities are likely to result, as the enemy are well armed and deadly in aim.

EARLY STAGES OF THE BATTLE

WINNIPEG, May 10.—The following dispatch has just been received:

BATOUCHE CROSSING, via Clarke's Crossing, May 9.

We left camp at 6 this morning, leaving all supplies and tents behind. We marched seven miles without seeing or hearing anything of the enemy. The morning was bright and warm. Suddenly there came the sound of a steamer's whistle blowing continuously. As we drew near we heard the sound of heavy firing in the direction of the river. Our line of march was as follows: First, Boulton's scouts accompanied by a Gatling gun, the grenadiers formed the advance guard with a battery. The Ninetieth battalion supported them with the Winnipeg battery, and the Midland battalion was in reserve with the gun from the steamer.

The scouts and Gatling then pushed rapidly ahead and soon came upon two houses near the bank of the river which forms a very precipitous [illegible]. The advanced party of the rebels were met, who fired and retired behind a [illegible] towards a hollow. The Gatling was brought to bear on them when they ran into a house near the church of St. Laurent, which was also fired on by the Gatling, when they ran out into the bush. The battery by this time came up with a rush and got into position, sending several shells after the rebels. The Grenadiers now advanced, marching steadily into action and deployed, continuing to advance in skirmishing order till the church was reached, when a priest came out of the house waving a white flag. General Middleton and staff advanced and shook hands, when three other priests and five Sisters of Charity came out. A number of half-breed children were [illegible] in charge of the Sisters.

A [illegible]

Father Moulin informed me that the steamer arrived at a point a little above Batouche at 5:30 A. M., and the rebels immediately commenced firing on it from both banks. It shortly afterward struck on a mud bank, but swung clear again, and just before our arrival passed the crossing. He also said the rebels had six killed and twelve wounded at Fish creek. We just got a glimpse of the steamer down the river. She must have had a hard fire, as her smoke stack was gone.

The Grenadiers advanced skirmishing through the bush at the right of the trail, the Gatling being pushed forward down a declivity towards Batouche, now plainly visible in the valley below. Here the battery unlimbered on top of the ridge, sending shells into them, and whilst doing so were almost surprised by a number of rebels who crept up through the bush, not being discovered until twenty yards distant. They made a rush for the guns, firing and yelling as they ran. Captain Howard, who operates the Gatling gun, saw the danger, and running the gun a couple of yards in front of the battery and opening fire, literally mowed the rebels down. Those remaining turned and ran from it, regaining the shelter of the bush. They opened fire again and Howard's escape from injury was something marvelous, bullets flying all round him. He gallantly maintained his position and the rebels, unable to stand the terrible fire, returned to pits constructed in a ravine running from the river.

Our line was now as follows: Forty-first and Fifteenth companies Midland, with Winnipeg battery supported by F and C companies of the Ninetieth in the center, and extending across to the right, where the grenadiers were supported on the left by B company of the Ninetieth on the right center, by D company of the Ninetieth and [illegible] the extreme right by F and A companies. The A battery occupied the left center, afterwards returning to the right rear.

12 A. M.—As I now write Capt. French, with his scouts and part of the dismounted [illegible] of A battery, are down in the ravine. Firing is now continuous on the left and center, but is scattered on the right.

After gallant but vain efforts to drive the rebels from their rifle pits, French's scouts and battery men retired. The wounded are now coming. At 1 p. m. the list of killed and wounded on our side is as follows: A battery—Gunner Phillips, shot through the stomach while in the ravine, and died while being brought in; Thos. J. Stout, run over by carriage, but not fatal; C. H. Appation, shot through both legs, one fractured; Gunners Fairbanks and Toohy, also shot in legs. Grenadiers—Capt. Mason, No. 2 company, slight wound in thigh. French's scouts—R. Cook, slightly wounded in leg; Curley Allen, in shoulder.

At 2 P. M. the rebels' fire gradually ceased, our troops, however, still keeping up a scattered fire along the line, gradually slackening until 4 o'clock, when only a few shots were heard. No more of our troops were hurt.

William Bruce, lately a prisoner of Riel's, but who escaped on Tuesday, was brought in by the scouts. He says that Riel's force is a little over 400, half of whom were on the other side of the river when he left. He also says that when ammunition was served to the rebels only one keg of powder remained. Bullets are also scarce. The women and children had been sent to the other side of the river. Prisoners are safe, so far as he knew. Beardy is not with Riel, but has been sent for. Riel, Dumont, Garneau and other leaders are in Riel's camp.

THE REBELS SHELLED

[illegible] P. M.—Boulton's horse has gone back to our corral to bring up all the wagons and supplies. We camp to-night, General Middleton being determined to get in position. Captain Young has just climbed on the roof of the church, and descried a body of Indians on a level with the river, near the bank, about a mile away. The Winnipeg battery was ordered and sent several well directed shells, scattering them immediately. Firing has now entirely ceased, but may be resumed at any moment. No news has been received from the steamer, but she keeps blowing her whistle. Hence it is concluded she is safe. The sound apparently comes from two or three miles down the river.

Early in the morning crowds of women, children and mounted men were seen hurrying into the bush on the other side of the river. The weather has been warm and bright all day.

[illegible] P. M.—A body of rebels has just opened fire from a bluff near the ravine on our left front, evidently on our skirmishers. They have fired three volleys, but are shooting too high to reach us. The Winnipeg battery is shelling houses in the distance, where a large number of rebels are gathered. A second shell crashes through the first house, and the rebels rush out. Another shell blows the roof off the house beyond. As these dispatches leave scattered firing is going on. We expect to clean out the rebels to-morrow and communicate with the boat later.

THE NEWS AT MONTREAL AND OTTAWA.

MONTREAL, May 10.—Much excitement exists here over the news of the engagement at Batouche, and reports displayed on bulletin boards at the hotels are eagerly canvassed.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 10.—Feeling here over the news from the northwest to-day is intense. The papers have issued extras giving accounts of the battle. The newspaper offices were crowded all day, and the fight was the sole topic of conversation everywhere. It is understood that the government have received a report confirming the news received by the press.

AN INDIAN FIGHTER INTERVIEWED

ST. PAUL, May 10.—General Crook, one of the heroes of the Minnesota Indian wars and judge of the military commission that condemned 300 Sioux to death, thirty-eight of whom were hanged at Mankato shortly after the massacre there, was interviewed by an Associated Press reporter this evening as to the outlook for a general Indian uprising in the Northwest territory, because of his familiarity with the Indian character. He says Middleton must achieve a decisive victory or all the Indians will have on war paint in a week. Should the half breeds achieve a signal victory over Middleton the result could not be but most disastrous. He said the best plan of attack from this distance of observation would be to weaken the works by shot, scatter the half breeds by shell from the front and flank, have Irwin fall in upon the rear with his 500 mounted police, force the enemy into disorder, mass them if possible, and then rake them with Gatling guns, rifles, shot and shell until all surrendered, and then storm their works. This would doubtless cost many good lives, as the enemy are very wary and fine shots, being trained hunters, but the end to be attained is so desirable and necessary that troops must be sacrificed. Otherwise the whole country would be swept by savages who are liable to go on the war path on the principle of throwing their lives away, in which case they would spare no women or children. He added that whatever grievances the half breeds may have, when they incite merciless savages they are entitled to no sympathy from Christian civilization.

PORTLAND, MONDAY, MAY 11, 1885

AN UNREASONABLE ALARM.

The people of northern Idaho, it appears, are suffering a great deal of apprehension respecting the proposed return of exiled Nez Perces to their old home on the Lapwai reservation. If the local papers fairly represent the situation, the interest in this matter amounts almost to excitement. A public meeting has been called to consider what is talked about as a serious public danger, and it is pledged in advance to an earnest protest against the return of the Nez Perces unless the abandoned military posts of Fort Lapwai and Camp Howard be regarrisoned. Supporting this idea, the Lewiston News says: "We do not believe it possible for these Indians to return and maintain friendly relations with the whites under any other conditions, because the memories of '77 are still vivid enough to excite animosity and race prejudice which could be very readily fanned into a war of extermination." If there be in northern Idaho a "race prejudice" strong enough to prompt "a war of extermination," we are extremely sorry for it. We do not believe it is so, but if it is so, it is most discreditable.

As to the policy of returning the exiles, there may be a question, but as to its prudence there can be none, for there is no danger, unless, indeed, it be for the Indians themselves, and this is too hard for belief. Only a despairing and helpless remnant now exists of the war party which spread terror through the country eight years ago. Two hundred or more fighting men were killed in the battles with Howard and Miles, and of the five hundred men, women and children finally captured by the latter in Montana, less than two hundred and fifty are now living, even when in this poor remnant are reckoned the births during the eight years banishment. The mortality among them in the Indian territory has been greater than at Libby or Andersonville during the rebellion. The punishment of the tribe has been severe and its present condition is extremely pitiful. Far the larger proportion of those now living are women and children, and they long to leave their dreary and deadly surroundings and go home to their relatives.

But it is not proposed to send them all to Lapwai. Half of the whole number are destined for the Colville agency, and in this band it is proposed to put those whose conduct was most atrocious. Of the band destined for Lapwai, less than forty are men. Can anybody be timid enough to believe for a moment that the return of a few miserable men, broken in body and spirit, with their superabundant women and children, is a menace to the settlements of northern Idaho?

We cannot but think that the public fear has been greatly overstated or that it has its origin in misinformation. Back of it we can but believe, skulks the selfish interest of a few men who would find profit in supplying the military establishments desired with beef and forage.

If, indeed, there should be a hint of hostile feeling on the part of the Indians at Lapwai, the troops at Walla Walla could be gotten to the seat of the trouble in twenty-four hours, and the forces of Vancouver barracks and Fort Coeur d'Alene could reinforce them in twenty four hours more. Railroads now connect these large posts, and in a few hours could carry their garrisons to within a day's march of Lapwai. Such being the situation, the people of northern Idaho should dismiss their fears.

THE CHURCH CONGRESS.

The first Protestant church congress ever held in America, begins its sessions in Hartford, Connecticut, to-day. Its object is chiefly to "promote ecclesiastical unity among Protestant Christians," and the aim will be to reach this unity, not through a society or creed, or formal plan, but through a "full and frank discussion of the great questions in which the Christians of America are interested." Every denomination will be represented by some of its best and ablest men. The Episcopal church sends Bishops Clarke, Harris, Howe and Tuttle, Governor Harrison, Senator Edmunds and President Smith of Trinity college; the Methodist, Bishops Andrews, Foss and Warren, and General Clinton B. Fisk; the Baptist, President Robinson of Brown university; the Presbyterian, President Hitchcock of Union seminary, Dr Howard Crosby and Roswell Smith, publisher of the Century; the Reformed (Dutch), Dr Ormiston; the Congregational, President Porter of Yale, Drs Dexter and Abbott, Senator Dawes, Dr R S Storrs and Washington Gladden; the Campbellite, Mr. Power, ex Governor Bishop of Ohio, and Mr Isaac Errett; the Unitarian, Dr James Freeman Clarke; the Swedenborgian, Mr Chauncey Giles; the Lutheran, Dr F W Conrad; the Quaker, President Chase of Haverford college.

Although representing these different denominations none of the members of the congress are considered to be in any sense delegates whether clergymen or laymen, it is understood that they speak only for themselves. No vote on any question is to be taken, and no official declaration will be made on any point as the result of the deliberations. A free discussion of some of the great topics of the day is the only object of the congress. Some of these topics are: The relations of a divided Christiandom to aggressive Christianity, the function of worship in promoting the growth of the church, and the attitude of the secular press in America towards religion.

It will be the hope of all Protestant Christians that such an exchange of views among individuals, as is here proposed, will contribute to a concensus of opinion, a prevailing atmosphere of sentiment, which will tend to prepare the way for a large amount of common understanding upon questions and interests where Christian people have been accustomed to differ, if not to work apart. The event is thus one of the greatest importance to all evangelical Christians, and its influence will doubtless be of great value along the lines of church fellowship and harmony. There has long been a healthful tendency in this direction among American Protestants. The old spirit of doctrinal exclusiveness and intolerance is rapidly passing away, with the growth of that broader and deeper spirit of Christian charity [illegible] in the common work of the churches.

A TYPICAL BOSTONIAN.

Thomas Gold Appleton, who died scarcely a year ago and whose biography has just been published, was in many respects a typical Bostonian, whose example might be imitated to advantage in every community. The improvement of his native city was constantly in his thoughts, and everything which tended to that end received his intelligent support. He was a great traveler and often stepped across to the other side of the ocean for a few months, but when his wandering years were virtually over, says his biographer, the rest of his life was devoted in a great measure to the advancement of his native town in art, literature and every form of intellectual culture. One of the earliest of his schemes was the erection of the statue to Benjamin Franklin, an admirable work of art, which fittingly commemorates an earlier Bostonian, who in his own century, as Mr Appleton in his, might well be taken as a type of public spirit.

From a very early period Mr Appleton was trustee of the Boston Athenæum, the constant enrichment of which, not merely in its literary but its artistic treasures, was deeply indebted to his efforts. He will be long and gratefully remembered also in connection with the Boston public library. When in 1853 this beneficent institution was founded, Mr Appleton was immediately chosen one of its trustees, and this position he held until his death. From first to last much of his time and labor and intelligent judgment of books, were placed at the service of this library, in which the citizens of Boston take such a just pride. But the enterprise which claimed the largest share of his patronage was the Boston museum of fine arts. This had long been an object of his solicitude, as the space at the disposal of the works of art in the Athenæum grew less, and when in 1870 the land was granted for the erection of the museum building, he applied himself with untiring zeal to its development.

These were but instances of his devotion to the adornment and improvement of his native town. Though not a great political character he unceasingly interested himself in those public measures which concerned the welfare of the city, the state and the nation. As wealth and material resources accumulate there will be needed just such an intelligent embodiment of public spirit in all the newer American communities. The years of prosperity which lie before this city will be fortunate if they bring to the front a body of men of the type which we have been considering. It has been said, especially of America, that there are plenty of men who can make money, but few who know how to spend it. Mr. Appleton understood and practiced the knowledge, and, as his biographer says he gave "to his town and to his time an example of the results of the highest culture upon a generous nature."

There seems to have been some ground for the report of a controversy between army headquarters and the secretary of war respecting their relative powers. Before Secretary Lincoln left office he made known to the general of the army the position he held on the subject, and this has been accepted by the present secretary as a question settled. The positions of Mr Lincoln's letter are not acceptable to army headquarters, and there is a certain ferment over it, which affords good ground for the late allusions to the subject.

Notwithstanding the favorable reports which continue to come from General Grant, there is probably little if any ground to hope for his recovery. A private letter from New York to a a personal friend of the general in Washington, says: "The affectionate demonstrations of the people have cheered the general up, and this accounts for his being better, but the disease is doing its sad work all the same."

The report that the farmers of Sweden are neglecting to plant, because they expect to be summoned to military duty, in order to maintain the neutrality of the kingdom as between the belligerents, affords melancholy proof of the widespread evil which may be caused by a conflict between England and Russia.

James Anthony Froude, interviewed at San Francisco last week, expressed deep disgust toward Mr Gladstone's policy as premier, and thinks his bungling, tinkering, hesitating and vacillating management of affairs in the Soudan and elsewhere has brought shame upon the name of England.

When the mugwumps read in democratic papers such expressions as the "mugwump curse," they must feel much like a foolish young woman who has loved, been betrayed, and then scorned.

Slater of Oregon is spoken of by the eastern press as "the most thoroughly disappointed office-seeker of all." This is a mistake. There are several thousand others here who feel just as bad.

Ex Senator Slater has learned that success doesn't always succeed.

THE CASCADE LOCKS

Visited by a Large Party of Portland Business Men

An open river from the great plains of the Columbia basin to the ocean has been the dream of the eastern country since the early days of its settlement. First there was mere speculation, later there was remote possibility, and now there is hopeful assurance. The next step to accomplishment is a long one, but its period need not be greater than either of the three preceding stages. The first definite plan for opening a steamboat way through the obstructions at the Cascades originated with Colonel John M. Wilson of the army corps of engineers during his service in this department something more than ten years ago. Under his direction in 1874 Mr R. A. Habersham surveyed the portages on both banks of the Cascades and reported conditions on the Oregon side which showed the work to be practicable at that place.

The obstructions at the Cascades consist of strong rapids over a distance of about four and a half miles caused by contraction of the waterway, producing a principal fall at the head known as the upper Cascades, and below for about four miles a series of rapids. Colonel Wilson formulated a plan which with modifications not changing its general character was adopted by a board of engineers and whose main feature was a canal flanking the first fall three thousand feet long and provided with two locks. The lower Cascades or rapids it was proposed to make navigable by the natural channel without locks, by clearing out the boulders and submerged reefs. As this river work was extensive its effect was expected to lower the level of the water at the foot of the canal. Just how much this lowering would be could not be predicted and as the depth of the canal was a matter dependent upon the level at its foot, the main operation on the canal itself had to be deferred till the lower work in the natural channel was completed. This work is now substantially done and has resulted in improving the [illegible] beyond expectation.

The steamer Cascades with the [illegible] excursion on board passed up the [illegible] to a point opposite the [illegible] block house, a distance of six miles through swift water in thirty-one minutes. The stage of water in the channel was twenty-four feet above low water mark, and though the climb was a hard one it was perfectly apparent that the boat could have carried [illegible] to the locks.

The annual flood greatly affects the Cascades. At the foot of the canal the range between high and low water is about fifty-six feet. At high water the difference of water level between the head and foot of the canal is about eleven feet. At low water this difference is about [illegible] feet. The whole fall from the head of the Cascades to the foot is 45 feet at high water and [illegible] feet at low water. On Saturday the difference of level over[come] by the boat was about 25 feet over a distance of three and one half miles [illegible] this performed with 140 pounds of steam during the performance.

[illegible]

[illegible] together $800,000 has been spent [illegible] estimated by Major Jones that $[illegible],000,000 more will enable the locks to be opened for navigation, and that the work could be performed in two years. [illegible]

[illegible]

At the lower Cascades the excursion was joined by Messrs Rush McAllister and Brooks representing The Dalles board of trade and Col Lang of the Wasco Sun. These gentlemen, with Dr Shackleford who went up from this city, and Mr Chapman of the Walla Walla Statesman, represented the eastern country, and very enthusiastically represented its interest in the work, from which they expect the greatest benefits. Those who went up from Portland and Vancouver were General Nelson A. Miles, Colonel Drum, Major D C Poole, Major McMurray, Major Baldwin, Captain Barnett, Captain Woodford, Lieutenant Willard Young, Lieutenant J N Allison, Lieut Burr, Messrs Donald Macleay, F K Arnold, Charles H Dodd, T A Davis, J L Atkinson, John McCraken, Ellis G Hughes, A M Smith, Captain S S Douglas, [illegible] M Parrish, William Wadhams, P B Sinnott, G Shindler, Charles Townsend, Mr Wilson, Captain Spencer, Captain Coe, M Shillston, [illegible] S B Pittengill, J M Thayer, H L Pittock, Alfred Holman, [illegible] Harvey, William Molson, [illegible] D D Neer, C H McClaire, Charles A Malarky, [illegible] Hazeltine, John Gram, John Reid, George W Collins, Jacob Kamm, Charles Kamm, D C Ireland, W J Burns, [illegible] Chambers, Harry Hazeltine, Robert Blossom, Frank Northrup, Frank Dayton, [illegible] George W Foote, A F Borthwick, Samuel R Irwin, [illegible] Mr Figg, E W Figg, A [illegible] Knott, John R [illegible], H T Hudson, [illegible] George W Lawrence, J Lowenberg, Samuel Lowenstein, Mr Frank, D C [illegible], F L Beach, Hy Dosch, [illegible] J J Hawkins, George H Himes, A H Morgan, Mr Woolsey, P C Schuyler, R A Habersham, Mr Woolsey, George Taylor, David Dunne, H Chapman of Walla Walla, J O'Connor, Dr J A Shackleford, Captain D [illegible], Captain William Smith, Captain Ward and others.

AN EPISODE OF YAMHILL

S. W. DIF[illegible]

In old Yamhill in early days,
Resided Deacon Blevin
Who always walked in pious ways
And showed the road to heaven

The Deacon was a justice too,
And mixed some law with preaching,
Though gossips said he took a view
Of wealth against his teaching

His neighbors hinted that his love
Of coin outweighed his bible
The Deacon calmly gazed above
And said it was a libel

The pious man some dollars made
Comm[illegible] bonds in tying
It mattered not so he was paid
How much the pair were [illegible]

Then [illegible] the old folks made complaint
Their anger he would parry
Assume the role of injured saint
And say "young folks must marry"

One evening dark unto his gate
An anxious couple hurried
The lover cried, "Oh cruel fate!
By parents stern we're worried"

"Fear not my son" the Deacon said
"Young folks must be united
And I will see that you are wed,
Providing I'm requited"

The trembling couple soon joined hands
Still seated in their carriage,
And Blevin blindly tied the bands
That made the happy marriage

"Oh by the way" the Deacon said,
"I fear that I've neglected
To ascertain whom I have wed
Though so by law directed"

The blushing bride fell at his feet
And cried "Papa it's Carrie!
You know you often said it's meet
That all young folks should marry"

The Deacon seeing he was caught,
Suppressed his rising choler
And in a voice with sadness fraught
Reduced his fee a dollar

Monumental Impudence.

From the Troy Times

There is no question of the president's firm and enlightened attachment to the reform. He has shown it in many ways and he is sure to show it in many more. He knows that had it not been for the record he had made as a reformer he could not have been elected. This is deliciously impudent after all that has happened. But then the New York Times is nothing, if not impudent. The cheek of that journal is simply monumental. From the day of President Cleveland's inauguration down to the present moment he has failed to manifest any practical interest in the civil service or any other reform. There was no good reason for expecting him to do so.

PORTLAND, MONDAY, MAY 11, 1885

AN UNREASONABLE ALARM

The people of northern Idaho, it appears, are suffering a great deal of apprehension respecting the proposed return of exiled Nez Perces to their old home on the Lapwai reservation. If the local papers fairly represent the situation, the interest in this matter amounts almost to excitement. A public meeting has been called to consider what is talked about as a serious public danger, and it is pledged in advance to an earnest protest against the return of the Nez Perces unless the abandoned military posts of Fort Lapwai and Camp Howard be regarrisoned. Supporting this idea, the Lewiston News says: "We do not believe it possible for these Indians to return and maintain friendly relations with the whites under any other conditions, because the memories of '77 are still vivid enough to excite animosity and race prejudice which could be very readily fanned into a war of extermination." If there be in northern Idaho a "race prejudice" strong enough to prompt "a war of extermination," we are extremely sorry for it. We do not believe it is so; but if it is so, it is most discreditable.

As to the policy of returning the exiles, there may be a question, but as to its prudence there can be none, for there is no danger, unless, indeed, it be for the Indians themselves, and this is too hard for belief. Only a despairing and helpless remnant now exists of the war party which spread terror through the country eight years ago. Two hundred or more fighting men were killed in the battles with Howard and Miles, and of the five hundred men, women and children finally captured by the latter in Montana, less than two hundred and fifty are now living, even when in this poor remnant are reckoned the births during the eight years banishment. The mortality among them in the Indian territory has been greater than at Libby or Andersonville during the rebellion. The punishment of the tribe has been severe and its present condition is extremely pitiful. Far the larger proportion of those now living are women and children, and they long to leave their dreary and deadly surroundings and go home to their relatives.

But it is not proposed to send them all to Lapwai. Half of the whole number are destined for the Colville agency, and in this band it is proposed to put those whose conduct was most atrocious. Of the band destined for Lapwai, less than forty are men. Can anybody be timid enough to believe for a moment that the return of a few miserable men, broken in body and spirit, with their superabundant women and children, is a menace to the settlements of northern Idaho?

We cannot but think that the public fear has been greatly overstated or that it has its origin in misinformation. Back of it we can but believe, skulks the selfish interest of a few men who would find profit in supplying the military establishments desired with beef and forage.

If, indeed, there should be a hint of hostile feeling on the part of the Indians at Lapwai, the troops at Walla Walla could be gotten to the seat of the trouble in twenty four hours, and the forces of Vancouver barracks and Fort Coeur d'Alene could reinforce them in twenty-four hours more. Railroads now connect these large posts, and in a few hours could carry their garrisons to within a day's march of Lapwai. Such being the situation, the people of northern Idaho should dismiss their fears.

THE CHURCH CONGRESS

The first Protestant church congress ever held in America, begins its sessions in Hartford, Connecticut, to-day. Its object is chiefly to "promote ecclesiastical unity among Protestant Christians, and the aim will be to reach this unity, not through a society or creed, or formal plan, but through a "full and frank discussion of the great questions in which the Christians of America are interested." Every denomination will be represented by some of its best and ablest men. The Episcopal church sends Bishops Clarke, Harris, Howe and Tuttle, Governor Harrison, Senator Edmunds and President Smith of Trinity college, the Methodist, Bishops Andrews, Foss and Warren, and General Clinton B Fisk; the Baptist, President Robinson of Brown university; the Presbyterian, President Hitchcock of Union seminary, Dr Howard Crosby and Roswell Smith, publisher of the Century; the Reformed (Dutch), Dr Ormiston; the Congregational, President Porter of Yale, Drs. Dexter and Abbott, Senator Dawes, Dr R. S. Storrs and Washington Gladden; the Campbellite, Mr Power, ex-Governor Bishop of Ohio, and Mr Isaac Errett; the Unitarian, Dr James Freeman Clarke; the Swedenborgian, Mr. Chauncey Giles; the Lutheran, Dr T W Conrad; the Quaker, President Chase of Haverford college.

Although representing these different denominations none of the members of the congress are considered to be in any sense delegates whether clergymen or laymen, it is understood that they speak only for themselves. No vote on any question is to be taken, and no official declaration will be made on any point as the result of the deliberations. A free discussion of some of the great topics of the day is the only object of the congress. Some of these topics are: The relations of a divided Christiandom to aggressive Christianity; the function of worship in promoting the growth of the church, and the attitude of the secular press in America towards religion.

It will be the hope of all Protestant Christians that such an exchange of views among individuals, as is here proposed, will contribute to a concensus of opinion, a prevailing atmosphere of sentiment, which will tend to prepare the way for a large amount of common understanding upon questions and interests where Christian people have been accustomed to differ if not to work apart. The event is thus one of the greatest importance to all evangelical Christians, and its influence will doubtless be of great value along the lines of church fellowship and harmony. There has long been a healthful tendency in this direction among American Protestants. The old spirit of doctrinal exclusiveness and intolerance is rapidly passing away with the growth of a broader and deeper spirit of Christian [illegible] work [illegible]

A TYPICAL BOSTONIAN

Thomas Gold Appleton, who died [illegible] year ago and whose biography has just been published, was in many respects a typical Bostonian whose example might be imitated to advantage in every community. The [illegible] ment of his native city was constantly in his thoughts, and everything which tended [illegible] and received his intelligent support. He was a great traveler and often stepped [illegible] other side of the [illegible] but when his wandering years were [illegible] says his biographer, the rest of his life was devoted in a great measure to the advancement of his native town in art, literature and every form of intellectual culture. One of the earliest of his schemes was the erection of the statue to Benjamin Franklin, an admirable work of art, which fittingly commemorates an earlier Bostonian, who in his own century, as Mr Appleton in his, might well be taken as a type of public spirit.

From a very early period Mr. Appleton was trustee of the Boston Athenæum, the constant enrichment of which, not merely in its literary but its artistic treasures, was deeply indebted to his efforts. He will be long and gratefully remembered also in connection with the Boston public library. When in 1853 this beneficent institution was founded, Mr. Appleton was immediately chosen one of its trustees, and this position he held until his death. From first to last much of his time and labor and intelligent judgment of books, were placed at the service of this library, in which the citizens of Boston take such a just pride. But the enterprise which claimed the largest share of his patronage was the Boston museum of fine arts. This had long been an object of his solicitude, as the space at the disposal of the works of art in the Athenæum grew less, and when in 1870 the land was granted for the erection of the museum building, he applied himself with untiring zeal to its development.

These were but instances of his devotion to the adornment and improvement of his native town. Though not a great political character he unceasingly interested himself in those public measures which concerned the welfare of the city, the state and the nation. As wealth and material resources accumulate there will be needed just such an intelligent embodiment of public spirit in all the newer American communities. The years of prosperity which lie before this city will be fortunate if they bring to the front a body of men of the type which we have been considering. It has been said, especially of America, that there are plenty of men who can make money, but few who know how to spend it. Mr. Appleton understood and practiced the knowledge, and, as his biographer says he gave "to his town and to his time an example of the results of the highest culture upon a generous nature."

There seems to have been some ground for the report of a controversy between army head quarters and the secretary of war respecting their relative powers. Before Secretary Lincoln left office he made known to the general of the army the position he held on the subject, and this has been accepted by the present secretary as a question settled. The positions of Mr Lincoln's letter are not acceptable to army head quarters, and there is a certain ferment over it, which affords good ground for the late allusions to the subject.

Notwithstanding the favorable reports which continue to come from General Grant, there is probably little if any ground to hope for his recovery. A private letter from New York to a personal friend of the general in Washington, says: "The affectionate demonstrations of the people have cheered the general up, and this accounts for his being better, but the disease is doing its sad work all the same."

The report that the farmers of Sweden are neglecting to plant, because they expect to be summoned to military duty, in order to maintain the neutrality of the kingdom as between the belligerents, affords melancholy proof of the widespread evil which may be caused by a conflict between England and Russia.

James Anthony Froude, interviewed at San Francisco last week, expressed deep disgust toward Mr Gladstone's policy as premier, and thinks his bungling, tinkering, hesitating and vacillating management of affairs in the Soudan and elsewhere has brought shame upon the name of England.

When the mugwumps read in democratic papers such expressions as the "mugwump curse," they must feel much like a foolish young woman who has loved, been betrayed, and then scorned.

Slater of Oregon is spoken of by the eastern press as "the most thoroughly disappointed office-seeker of all." This is a mistake. There are several thousand others here who feel just as bad.

Ex-Senator Slater has learned that success doesn't always succeed.

THE CASCADE LOCKS

Visited by a Large Party of Portland Business Men

An open river for the grain [illegible] inland basin to the ocean has been the [illegible] the eastern country since the early days of settlement. First [illegible] was [illegible] specially [illegible] there was a [illegible] possibility [illegible] hope [illegible] The next step to accomplish ment is a long one [illegible] its period [illegible] greater than either of the three preceding stages. The first definite plan for opening [illegible] through the obstructions at the Cascades [illegible] with Colonel John M. Wilson of the army corps of engineers during his service in this department [illegible] direction [illegible] Mr [illegible] the [illegible] on both banks of the Cascades [illegible] ported conditions on the Oregon side which showed the work to be practicable at that place.

The obstructions at the Cascades consist of strong rapids over a distance of about four and a half miles, [illegible] the waterway producing a principal fall at the head known as the upper Cascades and below for about four miles a series of rapids. Colonel Wilson formulated a plan which with modifications not changing its general character was adopted by a board of engineers and whose main feature was a canal flanking the first fall three thousand feet long and provided with two locks. The lower Cascades or rapids, it was proposed to make navigable by the natural channel without locks, by clearing out the boulders and submerged reefs. As the river work was extensive its effect was expected to lower the level of the water at the foot of the canal. Just how much this lowering would be could not be predicted, and as the depth of the canal was a matter dependent upon the river level at its foot, the main operations on the canal itself had to be deferred till the lower work in the natural channel was completed. This work is [illegible] done and has resulted in [illegible] proving [illegible] beyond expectation.

The steamer Cascades with the board of trade excursion on board passed up to the foot of the canal, to a point opposite the old block house, a distance of six miles through swift water in thirty minutes. The stage of water in the channel was twenty four feet above low water mark and though the climb was a hard one it was perfectly apparent that [illegible] could have carried [illegible] to the locks.

The [illegible] at the Cascades [illegible] At the [illegible] of the canal the range between high and low water is about fifty six feet. At high water the difference [illegible] water level [illegible] of the canal is [illegible] At low water this difference is about [illegible] whole fall from the head of the Cascades to the foot is [illegible] feet at high water and [illegible] at low water. On Saturday the difference [illegible] come in the [illegible] of 2 feet to a [illegible] of three and one half miles [illegible] with 140 pounds [illegible] the performance.

It has been believed generally that even if the canal and locks were [illegible] the [illegible] could be reached from the lower end [illegible] be comparatively brief [illegible] successful has been [illegible] the river channel [illegible] at times [illegible] designed [illegible] [illegible] help [illegible] the [illegible] it will [illegible]

[illegible] of the work so far accomplished [illegible] not show [illegible] the main cut for the canal was [illegible] the wonder and admiration of the visitors. A great furrow has been [illegible] an average of forty feet deep and two thousand seven hundred feet long, and its lining walls built up with massive masonry. A [illegible] of ground at the upper end of the canal [illegible] to be taken away to let the water through. In short [illegible] part of the work of excavation has already been [illegible]

[illegible] $500,000 [illegible]

[illegible]

At the lower Cascades the excursionists were joined by Messrs. Rush, M All[illegible] and Brooks representing The Dalles board of trade and [illegible] of the Wasco Sun. These gentlemen with Dr Shackelford who went up from this city and Mr Chapman of the Walla Walla Statesman represented the eastern country and very enthusiastically represented its interest in the work, from which they expect the greatest benefits. Those who went up from Portland and Vancouver were General Nelson A. Miles, Colonel Drum, Major D C Poole, Major McMurray, Major Baldwin, Captain Barnett, Captain Woodford, Lieutenant Willard Young, Lieutenant J N Allison, Lieut. Burr, Messrs. Donald Macleay, F. K. Arnold, Charles H Dodd, J. A. Davis, [illegible] Atkinson, John McCraken, [illegible] A. M. Smith, Captain S. S. Douglas, [illegible] Parrish, William Wadhams, [illegible] Charles [illegible] Mr Wilson, Captain [illegible] Captain [illegible] [illegible] Alfred Holman, [illegible] Wilbur, Molson [illegible] Charles [illegible] George W. Collins [illegible] Charles [illegible] Hazeltine [illegible] Northrup, Frank Dayton [illegible] Bostwick [illegible] Wilder [illegible] Bell, [illegible] Beach [illegible] Hawkins, George H Himes, A. AN EPISODE OF YAMHILL

In old Yamhill, in early days,
Resided Deacon Blevin
Who always walked in pious ways
And showed [illegible] to heaven.

The Deacon was a justice too
And mixed some law with preaching,
Though gossips said he took a view
Of wealth against his teaching.

His neighbors hinted that his love
Of coin outweighed his bible,
The Deacon calmly gazed above
And said it was a libel.

The [illegible] in some dollars mad
Commuted him [illegible]
It mattered not [illegible]
How much the [illegible]

Then [illegible] the old folks made complaint
[illegible]
Assume the role of injured saint
And [illegible] young folks must marry.

One evening, dark [illegible] to his gate
An anxious couple hurried
The lover cried "Oh, cruel fate
By parents stern we're worried."

"Fear not my son" the Deacon said,
"Young folks must be united
And I will see that you are wed,
Providing I'm requited."

The trembling couple soon joined hands
Still seated in their carriage,
And [illegible] blithely tied the bands
That made the happy marriage.

"Oh by the way" the Deacon said
"I fear that I've neglected
To ascertain whom I have wed
Through [illegible] law directed."

The blushing bride fell at his feet
And cried "[illegible] Carrie
You know you often said it's meet
That all young folks should marry."

The Deacon seeing he was caught
Suppressed his rising choler
And in a voice with sadness fraught
Reduced his fee a dollar.

Monumental Impudence.

From the Troy Times

There is no question of the president's firm and enlightened attachment to the reform. He has shown it in many ways and he is sure to show it in many more. He knows that had it not been for the record he had made as a reformer he could not have been elected. This is deliciously impudent after all that has happened. But then, the New York Times is nothing if not impudent. The cheek of that journal is simply monumental. From the day of President Cleveland's inauguration down to the present moment he has failed to manifest any practical interest in the civil service reform. There was [illegible] for [illegible] hunt [illegible]

More than a quarter of a million dollars has been expended in permanent improvements.

Every natural advantage of location, land, farming country, water power, wood, iron, stone, soil and climate was here at the beginning.

The water power is improved; wharves, mills and factories have been built.

A railroad is in course of construction to open up the trade of one of the finest valleys on the Pacific coast.

We have one of the finest town-site locations in the world, and over 200 acres of adjoining lands. We give land free to manufacturers, and furnish lumber from our mills at prices far below ruling rates in the country to labor-employing enterprises. We do not desire to speculate at your expense. LOCAL AND GENERAL.

GREAT VARIETY OF WILD FLOWERS.—While strolling through the park yesterday a gentleman gathered a specimen of every plant and flower which attracted his attention On returning home he examined his bouquet and found, beside several kinds of ferns and grasses and quite a number of flowers of which he did not know the name, the following Wild honeysuckle, the flowers more showy than the cultivated species, but scentless, two species of wild pea, one dwarf, the other growing several feet in height, the blossom very pretty salal berry with waxy bell-shaped flowers twin flower, a pretty creeping vine with bell-shaped blossoms growing in pairs. This plant has the honor of being named after the great botanist Linnæus, Linnea Borealis There were also yellow buttercups, wood sorrel, blue-eyes, strawberry, dewberry, thimbleberry and the sweet wild rose These are all indigenous but with them were red and white clover, the latter so common in Oregon that many think it a native dandelions, certainly brought here red or sheep sorrel, a great pest of the farmer, said to have been brought here by the Hudson bay men and sown as food for sheep, and last, shepherd's purse, mustard, dog fennel and plantain, showing that man has resided near and cultivated the soil By taking a little care to observe, this list might have been doubled

GAME LAW DECISION.—Judge Turner of Washington territory, holding court at Spokane Falls, has just rendered a decision on the game law that may be of interest to many sportsmen The game law of Washington territory regarding the killing of mountain trout is nearly the same as that of Oregon, and Charles Carson was arrested for having in his possession some mountain trout prior to the first of April that had been captured in Idaho Carson had an examination and was held for trial He then sued out a writ of habeas corpus, upon which Judge Turner has rendered his decision discharging Carson from custody. The court held that "the act interferes with the transit of property into this territory, and with the purchase, sale and exchange of commodities in another territory, matters which, the supreme court of the United States in Mobile county vs Kimball, 102 U S, says are national and require uniformity of regulation, and also that that provision which makes it an offense to have the possession of fish during a certain period of the year, must, if it covers the possession of fish taken abroad, be considered as extending beyond the necessities of the case, and therefore an unauthorized interference with the right of congress to regulate inter-state commerce.

IMPROVING EVERY DAY.—The city park was visited by a large number of people yesterday who found comfort in lying in the shade or sitting on the rustic seats. The work of improving the park progresses as fast as possible with the limited number of men employed The new road to the northwest corner of the park is well along, and the underbrush has been cut out on the high knoll at this place, from which by far the finest view from the park can be obtained Superintendent Myers has nearly completed a path from above the fish pond along the side of the ravine by an easy grade down to the foot of the hill By this path pedestrians will be able to reach the center of the park along a nice shady walk without crossing the drive. This path passes by the end of the huge fallen tree which every visitor to the park has noticed, spanning the ravine. This tree will by and by be cut in two, so that it will lie level, and by the addition of a railing be transformed into a rustic bridge. Seats will be placed at various shady places along this path, and some day a grotto and miniature lake and cascadelet will be built near the handsome young hemlock in the ravine. It will not be many years till our park will be something to be proud of

"SOLD ONLY BY SUBSCRIPTION."—About two years ago an enterprising agent of an enterprising book firm took a great many subscriptions from literary people of this city for a set of books known as the "Library of Choice Literature" The collection was the work of Spofford, librarian of congress, and was a very good one Yet some people grumbled, as they paid four dollars a volume for these books, and others sighed, as they had to decline buying And now comes a circular from an eastern firm which rejoices the hearts of the latter class and saddens those of the former The books which were positively to be sold only by subscription are now in the market at only two dollars per volume or sixteen dollars per set, a very reasonable price Wherefore, it appears that a new and choice book is very much like the strawberry, the first of the season commands a high price but a scarcity of demand very soon reduces it.

WHO DID THE CUTTING?—There is something rather mysterious about the cutting affray mentioned on Saturday morning Kelly, the injured party, does not desire to have the fellow who did the cutting arrested. There are plenty of people, hackmen and stablemen, who know this party, but none of them appear to know his name It is said that he has killed one man and got sent to the asylum on a plea of insanity, and after staying there a year was released Judging from the wicked slash he made at Kelly he is hardly a safe man to be running at large. Kelly said he was not to blame for the affray, but the police have learned that a short time before it occurred he had his coat off on Third street and was wanting to fight somebody, and it may be that he was following up this row on First street when he was cut. At all events, if Kelly is satisfied the public will try and put up with it.

IN RAGE OVER A DEBT.—Why do the heathen rage and imagine vain things? The generality of readers of THE OREGONIAN will probably give up this old, old conundrum. Probably they do so from various causes, but the reason why one heathen was raging at the corner of Second and Taylor streets last evening was because he imagined a vain thing, to-wit He imagined that another heathen owed him some money The other fellow could not imagine anything of the kind and a fight took place, and the quiet of the Christian Sabbath was disturbed by these unregenerate heathens, wherefore a moral policeman hauled them off to jail Ah Lee put up $10 and Hom Sue $10 as bail

BRITISH FORESIGHT.—The Victoria Times has information that by the middle of May the Canadian Pacific railway company will be in a position to transport Imperial troops from Halifax to Vancouver, British Columbia, through Canadian territory in eleven days. Should a war occur between Great Britain and Russia and the passage of the Suez canal be closed, Imperial troops can be despatched to India over the Canadian Pacific with greater expedition than by the Suez canal, and without danger of complications with foreign powers. The importance of the national highway is thus practically manifested, and the wisdom of the policy by which its speedy construction was secured vindicated

BOAT RACE.—Yesterday afternoon Ned Simpson, second messman of the steamship Columbia, and Joe Mackey, the steward's man, rowed a race in single sculls for the championship of the steamer and $50 The course was from the steamship dock to Swan island and return Simpson beat his opponent out of sight. In fact, he took such a commanding lead, that Mackey gave up the race before he reached Albina, and did not pull over the course The invitation for the crowd to come aboard the steamer was somewhat premature, and as the vessel was to sail at midnight, Captain Bolles desired that she be kept clean so the race, such as it was, was viewed from the dock.

ON THE RIVER.—Yesterday was a remarkably fine day on the river plenty of breeze for sailing craft, not too warm or rough for rowing, and no hot sun As usual all the craft to be hired were out all day, and no accidents were reported Five members of the Oneonta canoe club took a sail to Milwaukee in the afternoon, going before the wind in their light canoes at great speed, making the trip up in about thirty-five minutes. Coming back, they used muscle, and the time was somewhat longer

THE CASCADES TUNNEL.—An old subscriber wants to know when work will begin on the Cascades Tunnel No one can answer at this time Bids are to be opened in St. Paul to-morrow One of the specifications is that the work shall be completed within twenty-nine months from August 1 so if a contract should be let work will of course, begin without delay A well known contractor in this city gives it as his opinion that the tunnel cannot be completed in the time specified

CHANGED TO A STERNWHEEL STEAMER.—The old ferry boat Eliza Ladd, which has now been changed to a rather good looking sternwheel river steamer, was launched Saturday from the ways on the east side of the river near the foot of M street. The old boat was taken by a syndicate of builders in part payment for the new launch James B Stephens, and will be quite an addition to the numerous small craft that now ply in the waters of the Willamette

DEATH.—H M Ellsworth, Wells, Fargo & Co s agent at Tombstone, Arizona, was stricken with paralysis a few days since and died He was 59 years old, a cousin of the famed Colonel Ellsworth assassinated at Alexandria, and was well known all over the Pacific coast. He leaves a wife and two daughters and a brother at North Powder, in this state.

MAKING ICE.—The new ice machine at the north end has started up Parties who visited the works yesterday, say that it is a wonderful machine, keeping two men busy day and night taking out the moulds of ice The machinery, seven car loads, arrived here only a short time since and has been put together in short order If an eye is not kept upon it we may soon have a glut down by Guild's lake

PLAYING '49

A Lot of Kids on Salmon Street Struck by Theatrical Craze

A bevy of boys and girls living in the neighborhood of Sixth and Salmon without [illegible] Joaquin Miller and the supreme court of the great state of New York in their hearts have been playing '49 for the past week Of course their version of the drama was pirated from the McKee Rankin Company It was obtained by a smart lad with a good memory and dexterity in penwriting. Business has been from fair to middling, and the play will run during the next week and until further notice A reporter of THE OREGONIAN was invited to a matinee Saturday and on presenting himself was met by the disappointing intelligence that owing to the opposition at the Casino, they didn't have money enough in the house to play to Three boys sitting on oil cans which they had brought for admission fee looked very disconsolate because their mothers wouldn't let them come out of a night and if they did not get to see the show then they would not see it at all The manager calls his temple of Thespis the popular theater and has the following cast printed with for sure type no [illegible] like printing.

DOTLETS VS. STARS.

The Stars and the Dotlets played a game yesterday at the Oaks, East Portland, before a large crowd It was the first appearance of the latter at this place against a senior club, and there was a general desire that the young players should win but, though they had much applause and sympathy, they lost the game Berger and Goldner, their pitcher and catcher are good players and their little center fielder Hirsch, made two fine running catches of long flies but otherwise their play was only average being marred by bad throwing errors. The Stars did not present the full nine, and played a poor fielding game but their batting was hard and heavy Drummond was effective as a pitcher not an earned run being obtained off him Buchtel did some good and some poor work at short field Campbell dropped four fly balls, and Thompson made an error at nearly every opportunity Brandt did excellent work behind the bat and Drennan caught a fine fly in the field Batting features were a home run by Thompson, a three bagger by Drennan and two baggers by Drummond Drennan Hurlburt and Hendricks. In the sixth inning Farroll was struck in the head with a pitched ball and laid out for several minutes The score by innings was

A TRIO OF BURGLARS.

Three Bad Burglars going to St Helens To-day to Receive Sentence

Sheriff I C Watts of Columbia county was at the St Charles yesterday with a pocket full of handcuffs He takes down to St Helens this morning three young men to be sentenced by Judge Taylor for burglary They are Edward Keil of Astoria aged 18 an ex convict from Clatsop county for horse stealing, Leslie Sherman of Whitman county W T aged 21 is an ex convict for manslaughter, and James Edwards of Baker county aged 19 who was run out of Eastern Oregon The latter went to Astoria where he met Keil and they found employment in the fishery Being natural born thieves honest labor did not agree with them so they stole a fishing boat and ran up to Kalama where they sold it There they fell in with Sherman and the trio of beauties took a contract to chop a lot of wood near St Helens But chopping wood did not set well on the stomachs of these scoundrels and they concocted a plan to rob the house of M Fisk who resides about seven miles from St Helens Mr Fisk has extensive cattle interests in Eastern Oregon and he had just come down from that country and paid off some men in his employ and it was supposed that he might have brought down considerable coin

On the evening of April 28th they started out to rob Mr Fisk's house but ascertaining that he had not gone back to eastern Oregon as they supposed they determined to put off the job to a more convenient season and try for something easier So they traveled along till they came to Daniel Newcomb's house. He happened to be away from home so the three bold burglars concluded that they would burgle the place They broke into the house and stole some of Mr Newcomb's clothes Sheriff Watts was after the robbers early next morning but the only clue he could find was the heel of a footprint in the plowed ground near Newcomb's house The rascals had carefully obliterated their tracks excepting this mark Shortly after he met Keil riding along the road and thinking he might be one of the burglars told him to dismount and make a print of his boot in the dirt The young scoundrel turned red then pale and then said "I did not break into the house" "Who did?" said the sheriff "Sherman broke in and I held the candle" was the reply Keil was handed over to a deputy and Sheriff Watts then hunted up Sherman and Edwards When they found that Keil had squealed they threw up the sponge and went and got the clothes they had stolen On the next day they waived examination and acknowledged their guilt. They were brought up here and placed in the county jail for safe keeping and will to-day receive sentence

There still remains in jail here one prisoner from Columbia county named Laxton who is awaiting examination on a charge of burglarizing a saloon near Kalama and stealing a lot of tobacco and liquor

FROM THE CANADIAN PACIFIC TERMINUS

PORT MOODY B C, May 6

Everything is getting in shape for a first class terminus boom here in the near future

Bush fire have been raging extensively in this vicinity for a week, but have been subdued.

Tenders are asked by the provincial government for the erection of a commodious school building here.

The next ship from London with iron for the C P R R is expected to arrive during the ensuing week

The Mainland Telegraph is a new daily, a small affair and combination of the Mail and Mosquito, published at New Westminster

A J Hill late government engineer, has joined the real estate firm of Howse and Rickman and the firm name is now Howse Hill & Rickman

Taylor & Couderoy of this place are said to have put in the only bid for the building of the iron wharf here Tenders will be received until May 15

The military companies of this province are holding themselves in readiness to proceed to the scene of the half breed rebellion should their assistance be required

In the event of war with Russia it is thought British Columbia will be forced into prominence, and a struggle for the possession of the railroad which would doubtless be used for the transportation of troops might ensue In spite of a certain feeling of loyalty to the mother country most residents of this country would not be sorry to see Russia and England go for each other

The dominion government is again advertising for tenders for the erection of the terminal round house at Port Moody no bids having been received in answer to the previous advertisements The time for the reception of tenders has been extended until the 24th inst, and work is to be begun immediately The reason no bids were sent in previously was because every one supposed contractor Onderdonk would get the contract but it seems that he has his hands full to get his railroad contracts done in time and did not put in a bid Mr Onderdonk is rushing work as he has only a [illegible] more time on a part of his contracts and has been refused an extension of time

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

GREAT VARIETY OF WILD FLOWERS.—While strolling through the park yesterday a gentleman gathered a specimen of every plant and flower which attracted his attention. On returning home he examined his bouquet and found, beside several kinds of ferns and grasses and quite a number of flowers of which he did not know the name, the following: Wild honeysuckle, the flowers more showy than the cultivated species, but scentless; two species of wild pea, one dwarf, the other growing several feet in height, the blossom very pretty; salal berry with waxy bell-shaped flowers; twin flower, a pretty creeping vine with bell-shaped blossoms growing in pairs. This plant has the honor of being named after the great botanist Linnæus, Linnea Borealis. There were also yellow buttercups, wood sorrel, blue-eyes, strawberry, dewberry, thimbleberry and the sweet wild rose. These are all indigenous but with them, were red and white clover, the latter so common in Oregon that many think it a native, dandelions, certainly brought here; red or sheep sorrel, a great pest of the farmer, said to have been brought here by the Hudson bay men and sown as food for sheep, and last, shepherd's purse, mustard, dog fennel and plantain, showing that man has resided near and cultivated the soil. By taking a little care to observe, this list might have been doubled.

GAME LAW DECISION.—Judge Turner of Washington territory, holding court at Spokane Falls, has just rendered a decision on the game law that may be of interest to many sportsmen. The game law of Washington territory regarding the killing of mountain trout is nearly the same as that of Oregon, and Charles Carson was arrested for having in his possession some mountain trout prior to the first of April that had been captured in Idaho. Carson had an examination and was held for trial. He then sued out a writ of habeas corpus, upon which Judge Turner has rendered his decision discharging Carson from custody. The court held that "the act interferes with the transit of property into this territory, and with the purchase, sale and exchange of commodities in another territory, matters which the supreme court of the United States in Mobile county vs. Kimball, 102 U S, says are national and require uniformity of regulation, and also that that provision which makes it an offense to have the possession of fish during a certain period of the year, must, if it covers the possession of fish taken abroad, be considered as extending beyond the necessities of the case, and therefore an unauthorized interference with the right of congress to regulate inter-state commerce.

IMPROVING EVERY DAY.—The city park was visited by a large number of people yesterday who found comfort in lying in the shade or sitting on the rustic seats. The work of improving the park progresses as fast as possible with the limited number of men employed. The new road to the northwest corner of the park is well along, and the underbrush has been cut out on the high knoll at this place, from which by far the finest view from the park can be obtained. Superintendent Myers has nearly completed a path from above the fish pond along the side of the ravine by an easy grade down to the foot of the hill. By this path pedestrians will be able to reach the center of the park along a nice shady walk without crossing the drive. This path passes by the end of the huge fallen tree which every visitor to the park has noticed, spanning the ravine. This tree will by and by be cut in two, so that it will lie level, and by the addition of a railing be transformed into a rustic bridge. Seats will be placed at various shady places along this path, and some day a grotto and miniature lake and cascadelet will be built near the handsome young hemlock in the ravine. It will not be many years till our park will be something to be proud of.

"SOLD ONLY BY SUBSCRIPTION."—About two years ago an enterprising agent of an enterprising book firm took a great many subscriptions from literary people of this city for a set of books known as the "Library of Choice Literature." The collection was the work of Spofford, librarian of congress, and was a very good one. Yet some people grumbled, as they paid four dollars a volume for these books, and others sighed, as they had to decline buying. And now comes a circular from an eastern firm which rejoices the hearts of the latter class and saddens those of the former. The books which were positively to be sold only by subscription are now in the market at only two dollars per volume or sixteen dollars per set, a very reasonable price. Wherefore, it appears that a new and choice book is very much like the strawberry, the first of the season commands a high price but a scarcity of demand very soon reduces it.

WHO DID THE CUTTING?—There is something rather mysterious about the cutting affray mentioned on Saturday morning. Kelly, the injured party, does not desire to have the fellow who did the cutting arrested. There are plenty of people, hackmen and stablemen, who know this party, but none of them appear to know his name. It is said that he has killed one man and got sent to the asylum on a plea of insanity, and after staying there a year was released. Judging from the wicked slash he made at Kelly he is hardly a safe man to be running at large. Kelly said he was not to blame for the affray, but the police have learned that a short time before it occurred he had his coat off on Third street and was wanting to fight somebody, and it may be that he was following up this row on First street when he was cut. At all events, if Kelly is satisfied the public will try and put up with it.

IN RAGE OVER A DEBT.—Why do the heathen rage and imagine vain things? The generality of readers of THE OREGONIAN will probably give up this old, old conundrum. Probably they do so from various causes, but the reason why one heathen was raging at the corner of Second and Taylor streets last evening was because he imagined a vain thing to-wit: He imagined that another heathen owed him some money. The other fellow could not imagine anything of the kind and a fight took place, and the quiet of the Christian Sabbath was disturbed by these unregenerate heathens, wherefore a moral policeman hauled them off to jail. Ah Lee put up $20 and Hom Sue $10 as bail.

BRITISH FORESIGHT.—The Victoria Times has information that by the middle of May the Canadian Pacific railway company will be in a position to transport Imperial troops from Halifax to Vancouver, British Columbia, through Canadian territory in eleven days. Should a war occur between Great Britain and Russia and the passage of the Suez canal be closed, Imperial troops can be despatched to India over the Canadian Pacific with greater expedition than by the Suez canal, and without danger of complications with foreign powers. The importance of the national highway is thus practically manifested, and the wisdom of the policy by which its speedy construction was secured vindicated.

BOAT RACE.—Yesterday afternoon Ned Simpson, second messman of the steamship Columbia, and Joe Mackey, the steward's man, rowed a race in single sculls for the championship of the steamer and $50. The course was from the steamship dock to Swan island and return. Simpson beat his opponent out of sight. In fact, he took such a commanding lead, that Mackey gave up the race before he reached Albina, and did not pull over the course. The invitation for the crowd to come aboard the steamer was somewhat premature, and as the vessel was to sail at midnight, Captain Bolles desired that she be kept clean, so the race, such as it was, was viewed from the dock.

ON THE RIVER.—Yesterday was a remarkably fine day on the river; plenty of breeze for sailing craft, not too warm or rough for rowing, and no hot sun. As usual all the craft to be hired were out all day, and no accidents were reported. Five members of the Oneonta canoe club took a sail to Milwaukee in the afternoon, going before the wind in their light canoes at great speed, making the trip up in about thirty-five minutes. Coming back, they used muscle, and the time was somewhat longer.

THE CASCADES TUNNEL.—An old subscriber wants to know when work will begin on the Cascades Tunnel. No one can answer at this time. Bids are to be opened in St. Paul to-morrow. One of the specifications is that the work shall be completed within twenty-nine months from August 1, so if a contract should be let work will, of course, begin without delay. A well known contractor in this city gives it as his opinion that the tunnel cannot be completed in the time specified.

CHANGED TO A STERNWHEEL STEAMER.—The old ferry boat Eliza Ladd, which has now been changed to a rather good looking sternwheel river steamer, was launched Saturday from the ways on the east side of the river near the foot of M street. The old boat was taken by a syndicate of builders in part payment for the new launch James B Stephens, and will be quite an addition to the numerous small craft that now ply in the waters of the Willamette.

DEATH.—H M Ellsworth, Wells, Fargo & Co's agent at Tombstone, Arizona, was stricken with paralysis a few days since and died. He was 58 years old, a cousin of the famed Colonel Ellsworth assassinated at Alexandria, and was well known all over the Pacific coast. He leaves a wife and two daughters and a brother at North Powder, in this state.

MAKING ICE.—The new ice machine at the north end has started up. Parties who visited the works yesterday, say that it is a wonderful machine, keeping two men busy day and night taking out the moulds of ice. The machinery, seven car loads, arrived here only a short time since and has been put together in short order. If an eye is not kept upon it we may soon have a glacier down by Guild's lake.

PLAYING '49

A Lot of Kids on Salmon Street Struck by Theatrical Craze

A lot of boys and girls living in the neighborhood of Sixth and Salmon without the fear of Joaquin Miller and the supreme court of the great state of New York in their hearts have been playing '49 for the past week. Of course their version of the drama was pirated from the McKee Rankin Company. It was obtained by a smart lad with a good memory and dexterity in pen writing. Business has been from fair to middling and the play will run during the next week and until further notice. A reporter of THE OREGONIAN was invited to a matinee Saturday and on presenting himself was met by the disappointing intelligence that owing to the opposition at the Casino they didn't have money enough in the house to play to. Three boys sitting on oil cans which they had brought for admission fee looked very disconsolate because their mothers wouldn't let them come out of a night and if they did not get to see the show then they would not see it at all. The manager calls his temple of Thespis the popular theater and has the following cast printed with for sure type—no tend like printing:

'49 POPULAR THEATER '49

CAST OF CHARACTERS

Harry Spear	'49
F Drake	Colonel James,
A Danziger	Solomon Kane and Old Ned
R. Morse	Arthur Dennison
J Oldendorff	Tom Bradshaw
R. Towne	Anthony Cousins and Chief of the Vigilantes.

The auditorium is in the rear of the basement at 229 Salmon street, and the stage is what might be termed primitive. The admission fee is a coal oil can, three beer bottles or five cents. A stack of cans ten feet long, and six feet high shows that tin is plentier among Portland boys than nickel.

DOTLETS VS. STARS.

The Stars and the Dotlets played a game yesterday at the Oaks, East Portland, before a large crowd. It was the first appearance of the latter at this place against a senior club, and there was a general desire that the young players should win but, though they lost the game, they had much applause and sympathy. Berger and Gildner their pitcher and catcher, are good players and their little center fielder Hirsch, made two fine running catches of long flies but otherwise their play was only average, being marred by bad throwing errors. The Stars did not present the full nine and played a poor fielding game but their batting was hard and heavy. Drummond was effective as a pitcher not an earned run being obtained off him. Buchtel did some good and some poor work at short field. Campbell dropped four fly balls and Thompson made an error at nearly every opportunity. Brandt did excellent work behind the bat and Drennan caught a fine fly in the field. Batting features were a home run by Thompson, a three-bagger by Drennan and two-baggers by Drummond, Drennan, Hurlburt and Hendricks. In the sixth inning Parrott was struck in the head with a pitched ball and laid out for several minutes. The score by innings was

A TRIO OF BURGLARS.

Three Bad Burglars going to St Helens To-day to Receive Sentence

Sheriff Watts of Columbia county was at the St Charles yesterday with a pocket full of handcuffs. He takes down to St Helens this morning three young men to be sentenced by Judge Taylor for burglary. They are Edward Keil of Astoria aged 19 an ex convict from Clatsop county for horse stealing, Leslie Sherman of Whitman county W T and James Edwards of Baker county, also an ex convict for manslaughter, [illegible] who was run out of Eastern Oregon. The latter went to Astoria where he met Keil, and they found employment in the fishery. Being natural born thieves honest labor did not agree with them so they stole a fishing boat and ran up to Kalama where they sold it. There they fell in with Sherman and the trio of beauties took a contract to chop a lot of wood near St Helens. But chopping wood did not set well on the stomachs of these scoundrels and they concocted a plan to rob the house of Mr Fisk who resides about seven miles from St Helens. Mr Fisk has extensive cattle interests in Eastern Oregon and he had just come down from that country and paid off some men in his employ and it was supposed that he might have brought down considerable coin.

On the evening of April 29th they started out to rob Mr Fisk's house but ascertaining that he had not gone back to eastern Oregon as they supposed, they determined to put off the job to a more convenient season and try for something easier. So they traveled along till they came to Daniel Newcomb's house. He happened to be away from home so the three bold burglars concluded that they would burgle the place. They broke into the house and stole some of Mr Newcomb's clothes. Sheriff Watts was after the robbers early next morning but the only clue he could find was the heel of a footprint in the plowed ground near Newcomb's house. The rascals had carefully obliterated their tracks excepting this mark. Shortly after he met Keil riding along the road and thinking he might be one of the burglars told him to dismount and make a print of his boot in the dirt. The young scoundrel turned red, then pale, and then said, "I did not break into the house." "Who did?" said the sheriff. "Sherman broke in and I held the candle" was the reply. Keil was handed over to a deputy and Sheriff Watts then hunted up Sherman and Edwards. When they found that Keil had squealed" they threw up the sponge and went and got the clothes they had stolen. On the next day they waived examination and acknowledged their guilt. They were brought up here and placed in the county jail for safe keeping and will to-day receive sentence.

There still remains in jail here one prisoner from Columbia county named Paxton who is awaiting examination on a charge of burglarizing a saloon near Kalama and stealing a lot of tobacco and liquor.

The next ship from London with iron for the C P R R, is expected to arrive during the ensuing week.

The Mainland Telegraph is a new daily, a small affair and combination of the Mail and Mosquito published at New Westminster.

A J Hill, late government engineer has joined the real estate firm of Howse and Rickman and the firm name is now Howse, Hill & Rickman.

Taylor & Coulderoy of this place are said to have put in the only bid for the building of the iron wharf here. Tenders will be received until May 15.

The military companies of this province are holding themselves in readiness to proceed to the scene of the half breed rebellion should their assistance be required.

In the event of war with Russia it is thought British Columbia will be forced into prominence and a struggle for the possession of the railroad which would doubtless be used for the transportation of troops might ensue. In spite of a certain feeling of loyalty to the mother country most residents of this country would not be sorry to see Russia and England go for each other.

The dominion government is again advertising for tenders for the erection of the terminal roundhouse at Port Moody, no bids having been received in answer to the previous advertisements. The time for the reception of tenders has been extended until the 4th inst and work is to be begun immediately. The reason no bids were sent in previously was because every one supposed contractor Onderdonk would get the contract but it seems that he has his hands full to get his railroad contracts done in time and did not put in a bid. Mr Onderdonk is rushing work as he has only a month more time on a part of his contracts and has been refused an extension of time.

For Astoria and lower river points she had [illegible] pkgs tobacco 500 sks salt [illegible] bxs butter 155 pkgs groceries 1 boat 4 bars copper [illegible] soda [illegible] 46 cbs wid, 27 [illegible] 400 [illegible] 60 bdls plates [illegible] kgs spikes [illegible]

FLOUR RECEIPTS.—Last 24 hours 1470 qrs wheat [illegible] eggs 31 bxs fruit [illegible] pkgs butter. Also 50 bbls [illegible] from the eastern section.

FREIGHTS.—[illegible] has been taken [illegible] for grain loading by Balfour, Guthrie & Co. on terms reserved. The iron bark [illegible] Astoria has accepted a lumber freight from Puget Sound for the west coast [illegible] previously reported Janet McNeil [illegible] direct and this appears to be about the market. This [illegible] owner of about [illegible] shippers [illegible] Late change [illegible] 424 registered tons chartered for grain, 3371 tons iron disengaged and 10 [illegible] tons wood disengaged as the spot list. Listed to arrive soon is 2730 tons and later on [illegible] tons. The Zamora is currently reported to be about due from the west coast, and rumor has it that others are headed this way. The very lately expressed disposition to sell wheat has caused shippers to believe that more can be done in exporting but they will work slowly. San Francisco is reporting some new business at steady rates.

WHEAT.—Advices report very healthy markets today although Chicago closed below highest prices of the day. No doubt American crop prospects are exerting a considerable influence upon values both at home and abroad. The war feeling has so far subsided that speculators are unwilling to venture against it and more [illegible] causes has been stirred. The local market rules firm. Some of the holders that manifested weakness lately are raising their ideas and few will accept less than $1 [illegible]. Bids remain at $1 35, but the interior reports buying at a fraction advance and for round lots here the bid would doubtless be exceeded a fraction. In Walla Walla there is no business reported. Receipts appear to aggregate well but more [illegible] for San Francisco shipment. [illegible] day's shower renewed confidence in a good [illegible] and promises to bring about more selling.

FLOUR.—Market very steady, with [illegible] Standards quoted $4 50.

MILLSTUFFS.—Only a local trade done and prices are without change or new influence.

OATS.—Offerings show some increase, and choice feed sold at 35c, which is now the quoted extreme, more possible only for strictly choice lots. Weaker reports from San Francisco and better crop prospects at home make holders more anxious to sell.

POTATOES.—Only a local business done, and sales are slow at 35c for common sorts.

ONIONS.—Choice local jobbing at 4½c.

BUTTER.—Values without change, common grades in slow sale. Very little California [illegible] offered.

POULTRY.—Best chickens sold at $4, and [illegible] is quoted. Ducks [illegible]

EGGS.—Receipts fully ample and the market is only steady at 14@15c.

WOOL.—More outside buyers here, but they have done nothing so far as can be learned. [illegible] mills buying quite freely and paying within our quotations having taken of the better grades. We quote eastern Oregon at 14@16c for good to choice with 16½@17c possible for very choice, so few samples being considered worth this that we hardly feel safe in quoting it. No valley of importance yet received. The New York Shipping List just to hand says: "The business transacted since our last has been of trifling importance and the market has continued to rule quiet with quotations to a great extent nominal. The situation at primary sources is unchanged. Buyers from the east are present in liberal numbers but the extreme views of growers prevent the accomplishment of much [illegible] of actual business. Later receipts at San Francisco it is said show an improvement in quality as compared with early arrivals but corresponding advance in values asked tends to check trade and the general situation is unsatisfactory. In Texas a similar condition of affairs exists and it is a question whether some of the buyers will not find it unthrifty advantage to return home and make selections after the season has fairly opened here. Supplies of old are slowly disappearing, but there is no scarcity of the kinds wanted except fine [illegible] descriptions. Pulled continues to come forward in liberal quantities and it is difficult to sustain prices. Low grades are all slow of sale and easy in price. The quantity of new wool received here thus far indicates an improvement both in quality and condition as compared with the corresponding period last year, and has met with [illegible] at prices based on values for similar grades of old clip. In foreign the improved condition reported last week continues, and carpet goods have met with considerable inquiry."

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, May 9.—Governments, quiet and strong showing an advance of ⅛ for 4's, and ¼ per cent for currency 6's. The stock market opened strong for almost everything except New York Central which was heavy, and during the forenoon developed no other feature than an active market with steady buying by both bulls and bears, the latter covering shorts, while there was a fair amount of business doing for long account. After midday prices became more quiet and weak, and in some cases the lowest quotations of to-day were reached, but this was followed by a recovery during the last [illegible] and the market finally closing steady at the advance made, and generally within a small fraction of the highest prices reached.

[illegible] Chicago regarding the meeting of railroad officials in session there to-day. A firm rally was made after it had been announced that a settlement of everything in the west and northwest was completed and that rates would probably be restored on Monday, the plan adopted being satisfactory to all roads.

The continued repetition of statements that Mr. Vanderbilt was acting with [illegible] the leading bears in depressing prices and that he was a heavy seller of short stock [illegible] which he says: "There is not a word of truth in the stories that I am operating with Mr. Cammack. I am not interested in any way either with him or anybody else in bearing the stock market. I have not sold a share of Central since I sold 150,000 shares to a syndicate in November 1879. I have not sold a share of Lake Shore directly or indirectly, for months. Do you think I would sell Lake Shore at these prices?"

The result of the day's operations on the stock exchange is a net advance of ¼ to 1½ per cent for the active stocks, the greatest gains being made by Northwestern and Michigan Central, but New York Central, Lake Shore, Pacific Mail and Lackawanna are each up ⅝. Notwithstanding the decided rally during the past two days almost everything on the active list is lower this evening than it was a week ago, exceptions being Northwestern which is unchanged and Union Pacific which [illegible]

WAR AT SEA.

Torpedo Warfare and Neutrals—The Transfer of British Commerce

A correspondent of the London Times, April 18, signing himself "One who Knows," writes an interesting article on the question of protecting English commerce, preventing its transfer to another flag, and the status of neutrals in torpedo warfare. We quote the passages of the article bearing especially on these important subjects. The writer says:

First, what is to be done as regards the protection of our commerce and to prevent its transfer to a foreign flag? It should not be necessary to dwell on the results to American commerce of the exploits of the weakly armed Alabama and Florida. It is, I suppose, it is generally known that in the course of a comparatively short time the American mercantile flag was practically driven from the seas and the commerce transferred to foreign flags from which it has not yet returned. What then may we expect will happen to our enormous carrying trade, the bulk of which is conveyed in comparatively slow cargo steamers? As nearly all sailing vessels would probably be laid up in the event of a declaration of war I will not consider them specially.

After giving a list of Russian cruisers he compares them with those of England and prefaces his showing with the following remarks:

As has been well pointed out by M. Gabriel Charmes in the very important article on Naval Warfare which he has recently published in the Revue des Deux Mondes, a cruiser engaged in a war against commerce will not again probably make the same mistake as the Alabama by closely accepting an action with another cruiser. He dwells most emphatically on the necessity in this event of never accepting an action unless a very great superiority of force is on your side, and I believe that the Russians fully understand this. Hence, to prevent these cruisers destroying our commerce we want a decided superiority both in speed and power. Have we got it?

He answers that it is certain that England must expect enormous injury to her commerce during the first month or two, even if, by the purchase abroad by Russia of fast steamers to replace the cruisers captured or destroyed, this dangerous period be not prolonged. "It is a common belief," he says, "that the absence of coal depots would prevent Russian cruisers from long continuing their career of depredation. I do not believe this to be the case to such an extent as is generally believed. Our small coaling stations are perfectly naked, and as much at the disposal of an enemy as of ourselves. Our fleet of merchant colliers covers the seas and forms an ample reserve for any enemy."

On the subject of the transfer of England's commerce the writer goes on to say:

Except the United States and one or two small islands there is no power in the Indian, Chinese or Pacific oceans which is sufficiently powerful to preserve [illegible] of neutrality in the [illegible] of an unscrupulous enemy such as Russia. What then is to be done to prevent the irretrievable injury to the country which would be caused by the transfer of our commerce to a foreign flag? The remedy to my mind is simple and though at first sight daring, I am certain that it must come eventually.

Let the government immediately bring down to the house and pass (suspending all other forms of the house if necessary) a short act [illegible] providing that:

1. All losses or injuries to steamers or their cargoes shall be made good by the country and such loss be due to disobedience of orders.

2. It shall be a misdemeanor punishable with imprisonment and a heavy fine to transfer [illegible] to any foreign flag until the [illegible] All in any way [illegible] responsible [illegible] with the owners.

All officers [illegible] whether naval or consular [illegible] shall [illegible] time have power to detain for any period which they may think fit the government [illegible] to [illegible] and at any place any steamer what ever flying the British flag.

4. No steamer to sail from any port without [illegible] in writing the sanction of [illegible] the Crown at the port [illegible] the proposed track [illegible]

Art 1 would keep insurance at nearly its ordinary rates. Art 2 would be no real hardship to shipowners as the country takes the risk. Art 3 would be necessary both in order to prevent a hostile cruiser in the vicinity or known to be on the proposed track from obtaining supplies of coal, etc., and to prevent the natural tendency of a shipowner who takes no risks to make his voyage as fast as possible, regardless of danger.

Such a scheme as I have sketched out above is [illegible] satisfied necessary. If it [illegible] officers who have studied the question [illegible] kind and no injury [illegible] it will be due solely to the want of enterprise of Russian officers not to our own preparations. In this case should the above scheme be carried out no great harm will be done, as it will not practically come into operation, while, if my forebodings [illegible] to come [illegible]

The writer then goes into the question of what he calls unfair torpedo warfare [illegible] in the [illegible] of [illegible] He quotes [illegible] happened during the [illegible] and Peruvian war [illegible] ship was sunk by [illegible] loaded torpedoes in the first case the charge being concealed beneath the cargo of fruit and vegetables, and in the second so arranged in a boat that when the enemy attempted to hoist up the boat the charge exploded. Such expedients he regards, on the same [illegible] as poisoning wells or bullets and should be [illegible] He goes on to say:

Another [illegible] conceded [illegible] the [illegible] Admiral's ship [illegible] lost [illegible] water. Unless protected by [illegible] of vessels is so small [illegible] no fishing boat or coasting craft which are with [illegible] under either and neutral [illegible] could be [illegible] could disguise his crew would not be [illegible] a [illegible] flag might suit his convenience.

In these days of fast boats [illegible] A merchant steamer in the Baltic [illegible] may steam down towards ship [illegible] pass at the distance of half a mile [illegible] is to say that she has nothing on board [illegible] accompanied by torpedo boats. At night affairs would be much worse as the possibility of [illegible] the true character of an approaching vessel or boat would be still less.

If war is declared the government [illegible] have any intention of sending our ships into hostile waters should at once send a clear and strong intimation to the Russian government that they will consider any attack in which the nature of the attacking vessel is disguised either by flying a false flag or other means as a clear infraction of military law and that they will summarily execute [illegible] such [illegible] is the chiefs will be responsible [illegible] Such [illegible] could [illegible] who [illegible] and [illegible] have always been so treated. Surely disguising [illegible] comes under the same head while the results to human life are [illegible]

An equally clear and strong intimation should be sent to all neutral powers warning them that any vessel or boat approaching a man-of-war, either by day or by night, or passing [illegible] within [illegible] will be liable to be fired [illegible] Such a course may lead to complications [illegible] with an enterprising enemy it is the only way [illegible] our ships unless they be kept altogether [illegible] from danger. The warnings [illegible] might be continued to certain waters such as the [illegible] but this would depend upon the locality of both the Russian ships and ours.

The most [illegible] stimulants to excite the appetite are Angostura Bitters prepared by Dr. J. G. B. Siegert & Sons. Beware of counterfeits. Ask your grocer or druggist for the genuine article.

FREIGHTS. The iron bark San Luis 501 tons has been taken up for grain loading by Balfour Guthrie & Co on terms reserved. The iron bark Cassandra [illegible] now at Astoria has accepted [illegible] freight [illegible] Puget Sound [illegible] the west coast [illegible] private. The previously reported Janet McNeil is said [illegible] direct and this appears to indicate the market. This [illegible] possession by owners of about [illegible] and [illegible] the shippers [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] result [illegible] [illegible] changes give 4301 register [illegible] tons chartered for grain 1371 tons iron disengaged and [illegible] tons wood disengaged, as the [illegible] list. Listed to arrive soon is 2,430 tons and later on [illegible] tons. The Zamora is currently reported to be about due from the west coast and rumor [illegible] it that others are headed this way. The very lately expressed disposition to sell wheat has caused shippers to believe that more can be done in exporting but they will work slowly. San Francisco is reporting some new business at steady rates.

WHEAT. Advices report very healthy markets to-day although Chicago closed below highest prices of the day. No doubt American crop prospects are exerting a considerable influence upon values both at home and abroad. The war [illegible] has so far subsided that speculators are unwilling to venture against it, and more natural [illegible] must be considered. The local market [illegible] firm. Some of the holders that manifested weakness lately are raising their ideas, and few will accept less than $1 67½. Bids remain at $1 55 but the interior reports buying at a fraction advance and for round lots here the bid would doubtless be exceeded a fraction. In Walla Walla there is no business reported. Receipts appear to aggregate well but [illegible] [illegible] much for San Francisco shipment. [illegible] [illegible] renewed confidence in [illegible] [illegible] and promises to bring about more selling.

FLOUR. Market very steady [illegible] local [illegible] Standards quoted $4 50

MILLSTUFFS. Only a local trade doing, and [illegible] are without change or new influence.

OATS. Offerings show some increase and choice feed sold at 35c, which is now the quoted extreme, more possibly only for strictly choice lots. Weaker reports from San Francisco and better crop prospects at home make holders more anxious to sell.

POTATOES. Only a local business doing and sales are slow at the for common sorts.

ONIONS. Choice local jobbing at 1¼c

BUTTER. Values without change, common grades in slow sale. Very little California now offered.

POULTRY. Best chickens sold at $1 and $3 50@4 is quoted. Ducks sold at $5.

EGGS. Receipts fully ample, and the market is only steady at 12@12½c.

WOOL. More outside buyers here but they have done nothing as far as can be learned. [illegible] [illegible] buying quite freely and paying within our quotations having taken of the better grades. We quote eastern Oregon at 14@16c for good to choice with 15½@17c possible for very choice so few samples being considered worth this that we hardly feel safe in quoting it. No valley of importance yet received. The New York Shipping List just to hand, says: The business transacted since our last has been of trifling importance, and the market has continued to rule quiet with quotations to a great extent nominal. The situation at primary sources is unchanged. Buyers from the east are present in liberal numbers but the extreme views of growers prevent the accomplishment of much in the way of actual business. Later receipts at San Francisco, it is said, show an improvement in quality as compared with early arrivals, but correspondingly advance in values asked tends to check trade and the general situation is unsatisfactory. In Texas a similar condition of affairs exists, and it is a question whether some of the buyers will not find it to their advantage to return home and make elections after the season has fairly opened here. Supplies of old are slowly disappearing, but there is no scarcity of the kinds wanted except fine combing descriptions. Pulled continues to come forward in liberal quantities and it is difficult to sustain prices. Low grades are all slow of sale and easy in price. The quantity of new wool received here thus far indicates an improvement both in quality and condition as compared with the corresponding period last year, and has met with ready sale at prices based on values for similar grades of old clip. In foreign the improved condition reported last week continues, and carpet grades have met with considerable inquiry.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, May 9. Governments, quiet and strong showing an advance of ¼ for 4's, and ¼ per cent for currency 6's. The stock market opened strong for almost everything except New York Central, which was heavy, and during the forenoon developed no other feature than an active market, with steady buying by both bulls and bears the latter covering shorts, while there was a fair amount of business done for long account. After midday prices became more quiet and weak, and in some cases the lowest quotations of to-day were reached but this was followed by a recovery during the last hour which continued until the close of the board, the market finally closing steady at the advance made, and generally within a small fraction of the highest prices reached.

The interest of the street was centered in news from Chicago regarding the meeting of railroad officials in session there to-day. A firm rally was made after it had been announced that a settlement of everything in the west and northwest was completed and that rates would probably be restored on Monday, the plan adopted being satisfactory to all roads.

The continued repetition of statements that Mr. Vanderbilt was acting with some of the leading bears in depressing prices and that he was a heavy seller of short stock led to his authorizing the publication of a statement in which he says: There is not a word of truth in the stories that I am operating with Mr. Cammack. I am not interested in any way either with him or anybody else in bearing the stock market. I have not sold a share of Central since I sold 350,000 shares to a syndicate in November 1879. I have not sold a share of Lake Shore directly or indirectly for months. Do you think I would sell Lake Shore at these prices.

The result of the day's operations on the stock exchange is a net advance of ¼ to 1½ per cent for the active stocks, the greatest gains being made by Northwestern and Michigan Central but New York Central, Lake Shore, Pacific Mail and Lackawanna are each up ⅜. Notwithstanding the decided rally during the past two days almost everything on the active list is lower this evening than it was a week ago, exceptions being Northwestern which [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Pacific which shows [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

WAR AT SEA.

Torpedo Warfare and Neutrals—The Transfer of British Commerce

A correspondent of the London Times, April 18, signing himself "One who Knows," writes an interesting article on the question of protecting English commerce, preventing its transfer to another flag, and the status of neutrals in torpedo warfare. We quote the passages of the article bearing especially on these important subjects. The writer says:

First, what is to be done as regards the protection of our commerce and to prevent its transfer to a foreign flag. It should not be necessary to dwell on the results to American commerce of the exploits of the weakly armed Alabama and Florida, as I suppose it is generally known that in the course of a comparatively short time the American mercantile flag was practically driven from the seas, and the commerce transferred to foreign flags from which it has not yet returned. What then may we expect will happen to our enormous carrying trade, the bulk of which is conveyed in comparatively slow cargo steamers? As nearly all sailing vessels would probably be laid up in the event of a declaration of war I will not consider them specially.

After giving a list of Russian cruisers he compares them with those of England and prefaces his showing with the following remarks:

As has been well pointed out by M. Gabriel Charmes in the very important article on "Naval Warfare" which he has recently published in the Revue des Deux Mondes, a cruiser engaged in a war against commerce will not again probably make the same mistake as the Alabama by chivalrously accepting an action with another cruiser. He dwells most emphatically on the necessity in this event, of never accepting an action unless a very great superiority of force is on your side, and I believe that the Russians fully understand this. Hence to prevent these cruisers destroying our commerce we want a decided superiority both in speed and power. Have we got it?

He answers that it is certain that England must expect enormous injury to her commerce during the first month or two, even if, by the purchase abroad by Russia of fast steamers to replace the cruisers captured or destroyed, this dangerous period be not prolonged. "It is a common belief," he says, "that the absence of coal depots would prevent Russian cruisers from long continuing their career of depredation. I do not believe this to be the case to such an extent as is generally believed. Our small coaling stations are perfectly naked and as much at the disposal of an enemy as of ourselves. Our fleet of merchant colliers covers the seas and forms an ample reserve for any enemy."

On the subject of the transfer of England's commerce the writer goes on to say:

Except [illegible] the United States and [illegible] [illegible] small islands there is no power in the Indian [illegible] or [illegible] [illegible] which [illegible] sufficiently powerful to prevent or revenge infractions of neutrality on the part of [illegible] unscrupulous [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Russia. What then is to be done to prevent the fearful injury to the country which would be caused by the transfer of our commerce to a foreign flag? The [illegible] to my mind [illegible] simple and the [illegible] first sight alarming. I am certain that it must come eventually.

Let the government immediately bring down to the House and pass [illegible] suspending [illegible] [illegible] forms of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] necessary [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] parliament providing that:

1. All losses or injuries to steamers or their cargoes shall be made good by the country unless such loss be due to disobedience of orders.

2. It shall be a misdemeanor punishable with imprisonment and a heavy fine to transfer any steamer to any foreign flag, until the [illegible] repealed. All in any way aiding or abetting to be responsible equally with the owners.

3. All officers in the service of the Crown, whether naval or civil in [illegible] colonial shall at any time have power to detain for any period which they may think fit the government [illegible] [illegible] jurisdiction and [illegible] any place [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] flying the British flag.

4. No steamer to sail from any port [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] obtaining, in writing, the sanction of the [illegible] [illegible] representing the Crown at the port both as to the time of departure and the proposed track to be followed, upon pain of loss of compensation in case of capture.

Art 1 would keep insurance at nearly its ordinary rates. Art 2 would be no real hardship to shipowners as the country takes the risk. Arts 3 and 4 would be necessary both in order to prevent a hostile cruiser in the vicinity or known to be on the proposed track from obtaining supplies of coal, etc, and to prevent the natural tendency of a shipowner who takes no risks to make his voyage as fast as possible, regardless of danger.

Such a scheme as I have sketched out above is, I am satisfied, necessary. If I (in common with all naval officers who have studied the question) am mistaken, and no injury be done to our commerce, it will be due solely to the want of enterprise of Russian officers, not to our own preparations. In this case should the above scheme be carried out no great harm will be done as it will not practically come into operation, while, if my forebodings [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] of the country.

The writer then goes into the question of what he considers unfair torpedo warfare, [illegible] that fears upon the [illegible] of a being [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the cases that [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ships were sunk by the explosion of concealed torpedoes, in the first case the charge being concealed beneath a cargo of fruit and vegetables and in the second [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] that when the tender attempted to hoist up the boat the charge exploded. Such expedients he asserts come under the same category as poisoning wells or bullets, and should be made unlawful. He goes on to say:

Another [illegible] [illegible] torpedo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] fishing [illegible] [illegible] with a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] dredge, drifted [illegible] the admiral's ship. Suddenly [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] that a White [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] from the fishing [illegible]. Had the torpedo been charged the flagship would have been sunk. Are we [illegible] the Russian [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] may [illegible] [illegible] disaster [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] waters. Unless protected by a [illegible] [illegible] cordon of vessels [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] fishing boat or coasting craft which [illegible] with [illegible] [illegible] and neither [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] own flag could [illegible] [illegible]. An adversary who would disguise his craft would not hesitate to hoist whatever flag might suit his convenience.

In these days of fast boats and quick running torpedoes there is no time for parley or for examination. An [illegible] [illegible] in the Baltic flying, say the German flag, may steam down toward a ship so as to pass at the distance of half a mile. Who is to say that she has not lying in her off side a couple of deadly torpedo boats? At night affairs would be much worse, as the possibility of detecting the true character of an approaching vessel or boat would be still less.

If war is declared the government, if they have any intention of sending our ships into hostile waters, should at once send a clear and strong intimation to the Russian government that they will consider any attack in which the nature of the attacking vessel is disguised either by flying a false flag, or by other means, as a clear infraction of military law, and that they will summarily execute the parties concerned if caught, or if such party be minors [illegible] [illegible] will be held responsible. In the Franco-German war this was made the law as regards Franc tireurs and other undisciplined bodies, they being, if caught, summarily shot or hanged unless in uniform, and spies have always been so treated. Surely disguising a vessel comes under the same head, while the results to human life are infinitely worse.

An equally clear and strong intimation should be sent to all neutral powers, warning them that any vessel or boat approaching a man of war after having been hailed or passing her within the distance of a mile will be liable to be fired on, and, if she persists, sunk, no previous warning being given. Such a course may lead to complications and to compensation [illegible] case of injury, but with an enterprising enemy it is the only way of saving our ships unless they be kept altogether away from danger. The warnings in question might be confined to certain waters such as the Baltic and its approaches, etc., but this would depend upon the locality of both the Russian ships and fleet.
